Wilbur Asks States To Cooperate In Conserving Oil

U. S. INDUSTRY MUST ASSUME LEAD, HE SAYS

Present Volume of Production Will Last Less Than Decade, He Thinks

Colorado Springs, Colo.—(AP)—Secretary Wilbur today outlined to the governors of the oil producing states the belief of the federal government that "some form of cooperation between the states and the national government would be the most effective method of eliminating waste and conserving our limited oil supply."

Speaking before a large assembly of state, federal and oil company officials who had accepted the invitation of President Hoover to gather here to consider the possibility of an interstate compact designed to eliminate overproduction of oil by limiting and controlling drilling, the interior department head declared that uniform state legislation and uniformity of enforcement should be the aim of the conference.

"This identical conservation legislation, he said, could be created 'by a simple compact of the states ratified by congress.'"

"It is important," the secretary declared, "that there be stability of uniform laws over a period of years with such flexibility as is possible through the activities of an informal joint commission which would enforce such laws intelligently."

STATES MUST HELP
Dr. Wilbur told the conference as well as a radio audience which listened to the opening session over a nation-wide hookup, that primarily the responsibility for the handling of the oil problem rests with the industry and with the governments of the states.

He declared, "This is a gasoline civilization here in America. It is acknowledged that there are preventable wastes in the handling of our oil supplies. It is only acknowledged that there is a limited supply of oil available. Estimates vary, but these most expert in the field expect our present volume of production to last less than a decade."

Only a small proportion of producing lands are in the public domain although a large potential supply of these areas should be safeguarded. Dr. Wilbur said in his only reference to the Hoover conservation policy on government land. The position of the federal government, he declared, "It is not to interfere with the rights and duties of local state governments, but to lend such aid as it can and to participate in the solution of the problems. This administration has no desire to concentrate the forces of government in Washington, it has every desire to cooperate with the states. It is because of the urgency of the problem that this conference has been called."

"In spite of the many difficulties that face us," Dr. Wilbur said, "We hope that a careful study will develop plans which will be fair and equitable to the various states, to the owners and producers of oil and to the public."

INSISTS ON REGULATION
Mark L. Requa, friend of President Hoover and designated by him to preside over the governors' conference, said in his opening address today that if and when the government has made it possible for the industry to cooperate and cooperation is not forthcoming, he would urge "rigid government coercive regulation."

"Failure upon the part of the industry to grasp this opportunity," the chairman declared, "would merit just that alternative program."

The threat of government control, fell upon the ears of the practically every leader of the oil industry in the country, those of four governors of oil producing states and the representatives of a half dozen more state executives who were present to discuss the possibility of an interstate compact which would control drilling.

Mr. Requa said that "if and when the government has made it possible for the industry to cooperate and conserve, and that cooperation and conservation is not forthcoming, then, acting in the behalf of nation, at need, no one will be more insistent than myself in urging rigid government coercive regulations."

Earlier in his address the former oil operator and mining engineer had declared that "President Hoover in his order withdrawing government oil lands from entry has given ample proof of his ideas upon the subject. The withdrawal order is an act of statesmanship and demonstrates his grasp of the economic problem. It is timely, wise, patriotic and necessary."

CAN'T TAKE CHANCES
Defining conservation as the wise and equitable exhaustion of a natural resource with the maximum of efficiency, Mr. Requa said he hoped the conference would act to conserve through interstate compact or otherwise.

"It is not too much to say that both the national defense and the national prosperity will be jeopardized if and when our domestic supplies of petroleum are exhausted or even approach exhaustion," he said. "This statement is made with full recognition of the fact that synthetic chemistry may produce undreamed of marvels in the way of petroleum substitutes."

2 WOMEN HURT WHEN HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Two women were slightly injured about 7:30 Sunday evening at the corner of W. College-ave and N. Superior-st when an automobile, which had just turned north on Superior-st, stopped and backed up, knocking them to the pavement.

They were Mrs. Joseph Pansky, 222 E. College-ave and Mrs. Mike Scharrer, 610 W. College-ave. Both received cuts and bruises. The driver of the car was Raymond Korwelck, 1414 N. Clark-st. Korwelck stopped after turning off the avenue when he was halted by two friends, according to police.

Start Probe In Another Dry Killing

U. S. Officer Kills Minnesota Man 15 Miles South of Canadian Border

International Falls, Minn.—(AP)—United States customs department officials and Koochiching-co authorities today are investigating the fatal shooting of Henry Virkula, 41, of Big Falls, by E. J. White of the customs service border patrol, Saturday night. The shooting occurred 15 miles south of the Canadian border.

The shots which killed Virkula were fired by White when the former failed to stop his car at the command of the patrolman and his companion, E. A. Servino, also of the customs service. The chief duty of the two men was prevention of liquor smuggling from Canada. White had been appointed May 1, while Servino had been in the service five years.

According to Virkula's wife, who was returning with her husband and their two children to Big Falls where they operate a restaurant, her husband was struck by a fusillade of shots before he had time to stop the car, which she said, traveled little more than a length after the command halt. The shooting was done with a sawed off shotgun. Death was instantaneous.

OFFICER HELD
Arrested on a charge of second degree manslaughter late Sunday, White is being held in the county jail here pending outcome of the investigation. Except for Servino's comment that he saw "no reason for the shooting," neither patrolman would comment on the affair. Feeling against White was strong here, and his arrest previous to the investigation was interpreted as a precautionary measure.

The two men have not been suspended from the customs service, but N. A. Linderberg, assistant collector of customs at Duluth, has requested a written report covering the investigation as a basis for possible suspension. According to Linderberg, White and five other men were assigned to duty at the same time were instructed in the use of fire arms prior to taking their posts and were told that firearms were given them for self-defense. Virkula's body was brought here by the patrolman. No evidence of liquor was found in his car, according to police here. Two empty bottles in the car, they said, apparently had contained medicine. A coroner's inquest is scheduled for today.

FAMED ENGINEER DIES AFTER COLORFUL LIFE

San Antonio, Texas.—(AP)—Henry C. Harrison, 79, engineer who conducted the original survey for a Pacific-Atlantic canal across Nicaragua for the United States government before the canal was reached to build the canal through Panama, is dead.

Harrison retired from active business in 1915. He led a colorful life as a mining and engineering development and as an engineer. Following a mining venture in Mexico in 1886, in which he was employed as manager of mines at La Luz, Guanajuato he acquired mining and engineering interests near Bisbee, Ariz., and directed their operation until his retirement.

Harrison was born in Oregon City, Ore., following his marriage to Mary Catherine Stone, Montgomery, Md. Maryland, he was in charge of mining operations in that state, Colorado and Nevada. He is survived by two daughters.

CHURCH TEACHERS AT ROSENDALE MEETING

Five Sunday school teachers of First English Lutheran church attended a Sunday school teachers convention Sunday afternoon and evening at Rosendale for teachers of the Iowa synod. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Poir, Miss Helen Purnell, Miss Viola Schmidt and Miss Martha Rohde.

ANOTHER THEATRE IN CHICAGO IS ROBBED

Chicago.—(AP)—For the fourth consecutive Sunday, a theatre was robbed last night. This time it was the Knickerbocker, neighborhood picture house.

Mr. Requa continued, "The supply of petroleum and gas located within these states are guarantees of industrial activity and have a most intimate relation to the prosperity of such states. The states that do not produce oil are interested in the formulation of a policy that will assure their citizens ample supplies of petroleum products over a maximum period of time and at reasonable price."

DIRECTOR OF MUSEUM
Dr. Barrett, who was given the degree of doctor of science for his outstanding work in anthropology, is a graduate of the University of California from which he received a B. S. degree in 1905. The following year he received an M. S. degree from the same institution and he was given a doctor of Philosophy degree in 1908. Dr. Barrett also did graduate work at Columbia. He was a Levi Strauss scholar, and later a Le Conte fellow. From 1902 to 1908 he was museum assistant at his alma mater, in 1908 and 1909 he was ethnologist on the George G. Heye South American expedition, and from 1909 to 1920 he served as curator of anthropology at the Milwaukee Public Museum. He has been director of this institution since 1920.

Barrett is a member of the American Anthropologist association, the American Ethnologist society, American Folk Lore society, American association of Museums, Mid-west Museums Conference, Wisconsin Academy of Science, Arts and Letters, Wisconsin Historical Society, Wisconsin Archaeological society, Isaac Walton League of America, and of the Masonic Lodge. His clubs include Kiwanis, Professional Men's Milwaukee Athletic, Milwaukee City, and Explorers, a New York club.

He has contributed articles to the Milwaukee Public Museum bulletin, India Notes and Monograph of Museum of American Indian, and publications of the University of California. He also has done research work in ethnology of the Pomo and Miwok tribes of California, and the Cayapa Indians of Ecuador.

"Of an age and a people concerned so largely with their own present, you have chosen to devote your life to the interpretation for us of other races and past epochs," Dr. Wriston said in conferring the degree. Samuel Alfred Barrett:

"In recognition of your service to the people of Wisconsin and to the world of scholarship by your researches in anthropology and your skilled management of a great museum, it is with pleasure that, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the board of trustees, I confer upon you the degree of Doctor of Science, honors Causa, and admit you to all its rights and privileges."

Mr. Buck was honored with the first degree of Doctor of Business Administration voted by Lawrence college because, as Dr. Wriston said in presenting the degree, "He has been a crusader for integrity and truth in advertising; because in addition to sound judgment and constructive policies, he has brought many business enterprises the breadth of outlook and the richness of the Rev. Asks Divorce

Monte Carlo — (P) — Pola Negri (above) and her princely husband, Serge Mdivani, seem to have come to the parting of the ways.

Friends say that the trouble which has culminated in her suit for divorce started three months ago when they came to France. The prince wanted to go to Monte Carlo; Pola didn't. The prince said she absolutely forbade him to go, but he went anyway and when he returned their argument ended in her decision for a divorce.

She announced it to her closest friends two months ago but the papers were filed only last week when she was in England and the prince at the Hague.

"Pola is a marvelous girl," the prince said, "but life isn't always easy with a movie star. We have parted but we are still good friends."

back from Bakersfield, Calif., to receive the degree of Doctor of Divinity from his Alma Mater, The Rev. Mr. Slater was born in Sheboygan and attended Lawrence college from 1903 to 1907, going from here to Boston School of Theology where he received an S. T. B. degree in 1909. In the same year he joined the Wisconsin conference of the Methodist church and in 1916 he was transferred to California.

In 1918 Mr. Slater served in the United States army as a chaplain and then returned to California where he recently completed a new church and operates a county playground. He specialized in boys work.

Mr. Slater was married in 1907 to Fanny Hansen, a former Lawrence student, and they have two daughters.

"The industry and scholarly application which won you first honor in undergraduate days, have continued to carry you forward to fresh honors," Dr. Wriston declared in the citation which accompanied the degree. "Because of the clarity of your thought, the spiritual insight of your preaching and the intellectual standards you have so admirably maintained, we welcome you again to our campus."

MOTORCYCLE COP SHOT BY TRAFFIC VIOLATOR
Chicago.—(P)—Earl Leonard, a motorcycle policeman, was shot dead last night by a man he had arrested for running a red light. The slayer and his companions—three men and four women—fled. Later all surrendered except Patrick Joyce, the one named as the killer.

Joyce, a hoodlum with a court and jail record, made threats as soon as the officer took the car, the officers stated. He drew a revolver from under the cushion of the car and said, "I'll put a bullet through that copper's head."

The officer, if he heard the threat, gave it no attention. His gun was still in its holster when he fell. The other men in the rented car argued with Joyce against using the gun. They said they fought so hard with him to prevent his shooting that his coat and shirt were torn from his back. By the time the officer had heard his prisoners to call him, Joyce yanked loose from the others, they said, and fired one shot in Leonard's head.

Officer Leonard, who was 31 years old and unmarried, shot and killed Louis Padersonik in a pistol duel a year ago. Padersonik was hunted as a member of the Evergreen mail robbery gang.

PLAN DEFENSE OF STRIKERS IN SHOOTING

Gastonia, N. C.—(P)—Strikers lead from the jail here to the fatal shooting of O. F. Aderholt, Gastonia chief of police. Meanwhile officers continued to round up and jail additional strikers who were about the headquarters of the national textile workers union last Friday night when Chief Aderholt and three patrolmen were wounded by gunfire from within the building as they attempted to approach it. Aderholt died Saturday morning.

Where Beal and others taken from the jail are placed has not been disclosed by officers. Two of them, Charles Carter of Mizpah, N. J., and Lewis McLaughlin of Gastonia, were located yesterday in the Buncombe-co jail at Asheville. Each denied he had fired any shots during the mixup with the police. McLaughlin has been pointed out by a patrolman as one of the men who fired.

Yesterday's activities by police were marked by accidental shooting of a deputy sheriff engaged in a search for strikers wanted in connection of Aderholt's slaying. George Moore, a slightly wounded by another deputy.

Police declared they had not determined yet when preliminary hearing for strikers jailed would be held. They said they were waiting "until feelings die down and it is safe to bring Beal and the others back."

Funeral services for Chief Aderholt were held yesterday. Other wounded officers were reported to be recovering by hospital officials.

TWO PLANES EXPECTED TO HOP OFF TOMORROW
Old Orchard, Me.—(P)—Unless an unexpected storm should develop over the Atlantic ocean a take-off of the monoplane Yellow Bird and Green Flash for Europe tomorrow morning appeared probable today.

After a perusal of weather maps, Lewis A. Yancey of the Green Flash said that conditions were rapidly improving and that an area of fog, rain and low clouds, which has prevailed for many days, should move out of the projected course of the planes.

Yancey said final determination of a take-off for Rome would be made after weather advices were received from Dr. James H. Kimball, New York meteorologist. If there were favorable, it was expected that Armeno Lott, sponsor of the Yellow Bird's flight to Paris, would fly here from New York to join his two French companions in preparing for the hop.

Most of those arrested so far have been charged with "assault with a deadly weapon."

Several men believed by officers to have been those who actually fired on the police squad have been spirited from the jail here to other counties to avoid possible violence in the wake of high feeling that swept the town after Aderholt's death.

43 OUTAGAMIE RESIDENTS ARE MADE CITIZENS

Hearings Are Conducted by Judge Edgar V. Werner in Circuit Court

Forty-three Outagamie-co. residents became full-fledged citizens of the United States at naturalization hearings conducted Saturday morning by Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner.

The applicants for citizenship were examined by C. D. Berg, Minneapolis, naturalization examiner, and the ceremonies were conducted by Judge Werner.

Six applications for citizenship were dismissed because of lack of proper witnesses or for other causes applicants will have a chance to get in later classes by fulfilling the requirements demanded by law.

After taking the oath, the new citizens were presented with tiny American flags by the Women's Relief corp., auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic. The Oney Johnson post, American legion, had charge of a short program after the ceremonies. C. C. Baker a former post commander, gave a short address in which he stressed the importance attached to the step of becoming United States citizens. He urged upholding of the constitution and pointed out that they should become real citizens by interesting themselves in the affairs of the country.

Twenty-two members of the class were former citizens of Germany. Fifteen came to America from The Netherlands, two from Luxemburg, and one each from Italy, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Austria.

Following are the names of the new citizens:

Hennicus Theodore Wulterkens, John Willemsen, James Peter Kools, Agnes Jacobus Wurdinger, Gerardus Henricus Bolwerk, Martin Jacobus H. Wisman, Dora Anna, Mary L. Wisman, Geisbertus Vander Heyden, Lambertus Coenraad, Frances N. C. VandenBoogaard, Peter Johannes Havinga, Antonius Wyd even, Catharina Van Geffen, Laurens M. "SMALLEST" WRIST WATCH ON DISPLAY

Model at Kamp's Jewelry Store Is Smaller Than a Dime

The world's smallest wrist watch, smaller than a ten cent piece, is now on display at Kamp's jewelry store. The hair spring is one-third less the size of a human hair, and it takes 220 of the red ruby jewels, barely visible to the naked eye, to equal the weight of a two cent stamp.

The case is made of solid platinum, studded with finely cut pure white diamonds around the edge. It is valued at $1,000, according to H. H. Kamp.

Because of its smallness, it was impossible to incorporate into the watch a regular winding mechanism such as is found in watches of regular size. To wind this watch it is necessary to rotate the back of the case to and fro, and when fully wound, the movement will run 24 hours.

The watch was made by one of the most highly skilled watchmakers in the employ of the Bulova Watch company, New York. It took this man three months to produce the movement, some parts of which are so small that they resemble grains of dust. Some of the screws used are so tiny that it takes more than 35,000 to fill a tumbler, yet in spite of their size they are cut with the same precision and exactness one would expect to find in screws as large as one's finger.

The watch will be on display until next Thursday.

13 CASES LISTED FOR PROBATE COURT

Thirteen cases are listed for hearing at a special term of Outagamie-co. court at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning before Judge Fred V. Heinemann. Cases on the calendar are: Hearing on proof of will in the estates of Lena Graef, Jacob Jacoby and Henry Lenz; hearing on petition for administration in the estates of Jacob Licht, Sr. and Isabel Fomon; hearing on petition for appointment of guardian for Edwin Lenz; hearing on descent of lands in the estate of David Black; hearing on claims in the estates of Frank Futh, Helene Wendlandt and George C. Krueger; hearing on final account in the estates of Reinhold Schiebe, William Wilson and Wilhelmina Schabo.

KAUKAUNA MAN PAYS FINE FOR DRUNKENNESS

Arthur Gorham, 117 W. Fourth-st., Kaukauna, was fined $10 and costs by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Monday morning when he pleaded guilty of drunkenness. He was arrested Sunday afternoon at the corner of W. College-ave and Cherry-st. by Gus Hersele, motorcyce officer Edward Smith, 716 S. Jackson-st., arrested with Gorham on the same charge, did not appear in court Monday morning.

Popularity Of Peony Increasing Rapidly

Though the peony is just beginning to come into its own in the hearts of American people, its popularity is increasing so steadily that many horticulturists believe that within a few years it will outstrip the rose. To further increase its popularity in Appleton, the first annual Flower Show will be dedicated to the peony.

The history of the peony is interesting. Few would suspect that the flower is closely related to the common wild buttercup and the hepatica, or to the well-known garden flowers, the larkspur and the columbine. However, if the simplest forms of these flowers are examined, and the difference in size ignored, they will be found to have a marked similarity of structure. They all belong to the one botanical family, the Ranunculaceae.

The many varieties of peonies are descended from two species peonia officinalis and Peonia albobiflora. The former species is a native of southern Europe. In its wild state it bore single red flowers, but in a state of cultivation double ones appeared, and whites and pinks were introduced. The ancient Greeks named it from a physician Paeon, who according to ancient fable cured the wounds received by the god Mars in the Trojan wars. The flower was supposed to have medicinal powers, and in time many miraculous powers were attributed to it. Bits of root were worn around the neck as a charm to keep off enchantments, and when introduced in England it was often planted at the door of a cottage to keep out evil spirits. From England it was brought to New England, and then spread to the rest of the country.

The Paeonia Albiflora is a native of the cold portion of Siberia, where the temperature often stands at 60 degrees below zero for a long time. Consequently it is small wonder that its descendants are among the hardiest of flowers. In its wild state the flowers are single and white. Chinese traders passing beyond the great wall were taken with the flower, and took roots with them on their return to China. Soon it spread over Japan and China, both flower-loving countries, and soon these people produced hundreds of varieties. English traders, penetrating China about the first of the nineteenth century, saw the flower and took roots home with them, and soon the peony passed over the channel from England to France.

That counsel of the heart should be the guiding spirit of our lives was the keynote of a sermon delivered Sunday morning by the Rev. Robert Nelson Spencer, rector of Grace and Holy Trinity church, Kansas City, Mo., at the Lawrence college baccalaureate service at Memorial chapel.

"If you follow the counsel of your hearts through the river of American life, which has made this nation what it is today, you will be more apt to conquer the river, and to realize peace and happiness at the end of your trip," he said.

Counsel of the heart, he pointed out, should supercede all other influences. When the counsel of a clean and pure heart is borne in mind the owner cannot stray far off the proper path, he said.

Although knowledge is a wonderful and desirable acquirement, he pointed out that it is apt to act as a tiding against the heart's counsel. Proper association of the two influences is what we should strive for, he said.

"Knowledge has been liberated only recently," he said. "In ancient times knowledge was limited to the clergy alone, which kept what it

Baccalaureate Sermon at Lawrence College Delivered by Rev. Spencer

That counsel of the heart should be the guiding spirit of our lives was the keynote of a sermon delivered Sunday morning by the Rev. Robert Nelson Spencer, rector of Grace and Holy Trinity church, Kansas City, Mo., at the Lawrence college baccalaureate service at Memorial chapel.

"If you follow the counsel of your hearts through the river of American life, which has made this nation what it is today, you will be more apt to conquer the river, and to realize peace and happiness at the end of your trip," he said.

Counsel of the heart, he pointed out, should supercede all other influences. When the counsel of a clean and pure heart is borne in mind the owner cannot stray far off the proper path, he said.

Although knowledge is a wonderful and desirable acquirement, he pointed out that it is apt to act as a tiding against the heart's counsel. Proper association of the two influences is what we should strive for, he said.

"Knowledge has been liberated only recently," he said. "In ancient times knowledge was limited to the clergy alone, which kept what it

DATES SELECTED FOR FLOWER SHOW OF GARDEN SOCIETY

First Exhibit of Organization Will Be Held June 22 and 23

The first flower show sponsored by the Appleton Flower and Garden society, an American legion activity will be held in Armory G on Saturday and Sunday, June 22 and 23. It was announced Monday by H. A. Schlutz, president of the society.

The prize list has been prepared and will be announced in a day or two. A total of 249 prizes will be offered exhibitors of spring flowers of which 16 prizes are for peonies which are expected to be in full bloom at that time.

No entry fee will be charged and every flower grower in this vicinity will be urged to enter flowers to compete for prizes. No admission will be charged to visit the show. All the expenses are to be paid by the American legion which is endeavoring to foster an interest in home gardening in Appleton.

In addition to the hundreds of entries by flower raisers competing for prizes, a large number of professional florists will have exhibits in the armory. One of the features will be a complete home garden, done in miniature, with a miniature house as the background.

The flower and garden society was organized during the late winter with the idea of sponsoring three flower shows this summer. The first is to be held at peony time, the second during the sweet pea season and the third when dahlias are in their glory. Elaborate arrangements are being made for the first show to make it a huge success. There will be specially constructed shadow boxes, specially arranged tables showing the most advantageous use of cut flowers, several elaborate exhibits by professional florists and hundreds of exhibits by amateur gardeners.

Entry blanks will be prepared in a few days and arrangements will be made for receiving entries.

The show is to open for public inspection at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon June 21 and will remain open until late Sunday night. All flowers must be in the armory by noon on the first day of the show and judging will start about 1 o'clock. Ribbons will be given as prizes in all divisions. Prizes will be offered for the most perfect flowers and for the most interesting collections of flowers of varieties entered.

Vases will be furnished by the flower and garden society so that there will be a uniformity in the exhibits. Flowers are to be delivered to the armory where they will be labeled with the name of the exhibitors and arranged for exhibition.

SEVEN GRADUATES OF 50 YEARS AGO HERE FOR REUNION

All Living Members of Class of 1879 Attend Alumni Banquet
With seven of the 12 people who graduated from Lawrence college way back in 1879 for a grand reunion, the alumni banquet, Friday evening at Brokaw hall turned into a "remember when" meeting, with friendly sallies, sparkling wit and delightful anecdotes providing amusement for the entire assemblage. The meeting was in the hands of the class of 1879, and they made the most of the occasion to revive old memories and bring to the newer alumni a picture of Lawrence when its building numbered two and a graduating class of 12 people was something to boast about.
The seven people—the only living members of their class—came from five different states to attend the reunion. They included Horace Evans, manufacturer of scientific high school laboratory apparatus, Wausau; Dr. George Fellows, former president of the University of Maine, and now head of the history department of the University of Utah; Henry Tice, district superintendent of the Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, Pueblo, Colo.; Judge Milton C. Porter, judge of Lincoln County, Merrill; the Rev. Frank Nimits, Waukegan, Ill.; Florence Thompson Murch, Dallas, Texas; and Mrs. T. W. Orbeson, Appleton.
The shield awarded each year to the class with the largest percentage of alumni at the annual meeting was awarded to this class.
Mr. Evans acted as toastmaster, and the principal speaker of the evening was Dr. Fellows, who spoke on the relation of alumni to the institution from which they were graduated. After a brief description of the progress of man since the beginning of time, Dr. Fellows told how an alumnus could most benefit his Alma Mater. He said that alumni backing of an institution can accomplish anything, and explained that the two things an institution needs most from its graduates are loyalty and constructive criticism. He also pointed out how a college needs financial support from its alumni or from contacts which its graduates have made.
Other members of the class who made brief contributions to the program were Henry Tice, Judge Porter, Mrs. Murch, and Rev. Nimits. Dr. Henry Merritt Wriston welcomed the alumni, and Dr. Richard Evans, president of the alumni association, presented the shield. Two songs were sung by David Scouler. A letter from the Rev. Justice H. Nelson, Portland, Ore., a graduate of the class of 1876, was read by the toastmaster.
Alumni officers elected by the directors following the banquet were Dr. Richard Evans, president; Miss Elizabeth Wilson, vice president; Miss Ruth Saecker, secretary; and Dr. J. L. Reeve and Dr. Louis Baker, members at large. New directors are Miss Edna Wiegand of the foreign language department; Paul Vincent, Stevens Point; and W. H. Kreiss, Appleton.

LOCAL WOMAN CATCHES 30-POUND "MUSKIE"

Fishing isn't exactly Mrs. John Engel's long suit, but nevertheless she has a knack for big fish. A 30-pound muskellunge succumbed to her fishing tactics at Pelican Lake Saturday and was landed by her father, D. E. Rockwood, at whose cottage Mrs. Engel was visiting. It took from 20 to 30 minutes to tire out the "muskie" and land him.
If there is any doubting Thomas, Mrs. Engel states that the catch is now chained in the icebox at Buttes des Morts country club and can be viewed any time until it goes under the knife of the chef.

SEE TRADE BOOM IN DEBT ACCORD

The flow of further capital to Germany and recently they have been much in the forefront of attention because of the large American investments in companies active in foreign trade.
EXPECT NATION'S O. K.
The experts' agreement has yet to be ratified by the individual governments but in view of the long drawn out negotiations it is considered unlikely that any nation will take the responsibility for breaking down what has been achieved.
The direct effects of the reparations settlement undoubtedly will be to stimulate foreign trade and increase the purchases by the rest of the world of American made products. Also it will tend to bring American prominently in foreign manufacturing enterprises. So far as the credit situation in the United States is concerned ultimately the reparations settlement will be one of the factors producing easier money conditions. This cannot happen overnight or in a month but will be a gradual evolution.
It takes considerable time for a change from tight credit to easier money. The present transition being accomplished by the federal reserve system is a case in point. It may take a month before the new policy of purchasing bills of exchange by federal reserve banks, as rates are not brought down any more violently than they are sent up.
With the release of large sums of gold held for transfer eventualities and with the whole interrelated problem getting clarified, the psychological influence of a revival of optimism in Europe can hardly be overestimated. That is why the Young plan is regarded here as likely to prove a turning point in the entire credit and economic situation.

COUNTY AGENT AT MADISON MEETING

Several Hundred Outagamie-co Farmers at U. of W. Station Day
Gus Sell, Outagamie-co agricultural agent, was one of many Outagamie-co people who attended the permanent station day at Madison Saturday. The day's activity was under the direction of the university agricultural school and featured live stock problems. The afternoon's program was a review of results of experiments in abortion control through medium of mineral feeds. It was brought out during the meeting that abortion is causing greater loss to farmers than tuberculosis.
Crop experiment day will be held in July, according to Mr. Sell, the old single experiment day featuring all types of farm activity having been done away with and three separate days at more opportune times being devoted to the activity.

LEGISLATURE GETS RID OF HALF DOZEN IMPORTANT BILLS

Assembly Passes Children's Code Bill—Senate Defeats Cigaret Measure

Madison—(P)—Legislators, glancing in their chambers' windows last week, saw a bright June sun. They thought of the hot summer days to come, and disposed promptly of a half dozen measures which have been dragging on since the opening of the session last January.

The assembly passed and forwarded to the senate the Children's Code bill, which has led a stormy and troubled existence before the judiciary committee since February. Although greatly amended so as to remove many of the features to which objections were made, the bill still meets the approval of the various social welfare agencies which fostered it. Its purpose is to codify into one statute all the laws dealing with delinquent and unfortunate children.

One more reform measure introduced by Senator Howard Teasdale went down to defeat. The senate permanently rejected his proposal to place a tax on cigarettes. His bill called for a referendum vote in 1930 on the question, but the upper house was unwilling even to let the voters of the state decide the question.

Dog racing in the state was doomed by the senate's passage of the Davies bill, which outlaws the "contribution and refund" system of betting, upon which the dog tracks depend for their existence. The measure has previously passed the assembly, and now requires only the signature of Governor Kohler to become law.

Introduced by Assemblyman Davies, of Waukesha-co., the bill was aimed particularly at a track which operates in that county, and which is patronized by residents of Milwaukee.

Although opposed to betting at the races, the legislature fully approves Sunday baseball, golf games, theater-going, and kindred activity on the first day of the week. The Grob-schmidt bill, legalizing "wholesome amusements" on Sunday, which are now carried on despite prohibitory laws on the statute books, was given preliminary approval by the senate. It has already passed the lower house. The senate is expected to vote final passage for the bill next week.

SMITH BILL ENGROSSED
The Kohler administration's policy of combining into one department the functions of governmental units performing kindred services met with approval from the assembly.

That body engrossed and forwarded to the joint finance committee Assemblyman Don V. Smith's bill, which would consolidate the department of markets with the department of agriculture. A similar measure, although more far reaching in its provisions, was given initial approval by the senate some time ago, but has been resting before the finance body without further action.

The attitude which the senate is likely to take on a number of bills providing for public ownership of electric utilities was indicated during the week. The upper house rejected 15 to 8 Senator Hunt's measure which would allow municipalities to own and operate power plants in competition with existing private concerns.

A number of bills dealing with the same subject were reported out of the assembly judiciary committee during the week. Should they pass the lower house, it is considered unlikely they will meet with approval in the senate, in view of its stand on the Hunt bill.

The investigation ordered by the legislature into the campaigns since 1924 continues to mark time, with only assembly members of the investigation committee prepared to function.

Because Assemblymen Nixon, Goff and Carow insist that the chairmanship should go to Carow, instead of awarding it to Senator Blanchard, both Blanchard and Shearer, the senate members, resigned from the committee.

Their successors must be chosen by the committee on committees of the upper house. That body will meet when the two houses reconvene Tuesday.

On Tuesday the judiciary committee of the assembly will open its hearing of charges made against Circuit Judge E. B. Belden, Racine. An appropriation of $1,500 was passed by the legislature this week to defray the committee's expenses in employing additional stenographic and other help to carry on the hearing.

LECTURE CLINICS FOR PHYSICIANS PLANNED

Madison—(P)—Postgraduate lecture-clinics for physicians, on the care, feeding, and medical treatment of children will be held this summer in Superior, Ashland, New Richmond, Eau Claire-Chippewa Falls, Whitehall and Rice Lake, Chester, Allen, field director of the University of Wisconsin extension division has announced. The work will begin July 1, and will consist of 12 weekly meetings in each city.

Dr. Alexis Hartmann and Dr. Francis S. Smith of the pediatrics department, Washington university, St. Louis, will conduct the course, similar to those held last year in 12 cities of north-central and south Wisconsin.

More than 60 physicians have enrolled. The work is fostered by the extension division and administered by a committee of eight physicians and the secretary of the state medical society.

Dr. Malcolm Sargent, the famous English orchestra conductor, has just refused $35,000 as musical director of a London motion picture theatre which would require only three ten-minute appearances a day.

Veteran Of '64 Says He Thought Case Hopeless

Was Confined to House With Rheumatism for Three Months
—Sargon Restores Health

"Sargon brought me out of what I thought was a hopeless case of rheumatism and kidney trouble. Since taking this strengthening medicine I feel twenty years younger."

"My trouble started twelve years ago, when my kidneys got out of order. I had to get up several times at night, and not getting proper rest caused me to feel tired and lazy all the time. My eyes were bloated, my back hurt me, and I kept getting worse until I finally contracted rheumatism. I couldn't put on my shoes and socks, my feet and legs were so swollen, and for three months I didn't leave the house. I had tried nearly everything without results, but kept reading so many fine things about Sargon that I decided to try it."

"Sargon has done more for me than everything else I tried put together. My case was stubborn, but after eight bottles of this wonderful medicine, I am feeling like a new man. The swelling went down, the rheumatism was driven from my body and the kidney trouble cleared up so that I can now enjoy a good night's sleep. My eyes are not bloated any more and the pains in my back are gone. That tired feeling left me. Sargon gave me new strength and energy, increased my weight and toned up my whole system."

The above grateful statement was made recently by Martin Larsen, member of the G. A. R., who lives at the National Soldiers Home in Milwaukee and is highly respected by his friends and comrades.

Sargon may be obtained in Appleton from Voigt's Drug Store and in Kaukauna from H. G. Brauer.

REMEMBER STATE OF PUBLIC'S MIND IN BUYING STOCK

Condition of Money Market Also Has Important Bearing on Prices

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES

New York—Two points remained to be considered in our discussion of the tests to be applied in reaching a decision as to the desirability of investing in a certain stock. One of these is the question of the money market and the other is the state of mind of the investing and speculating public.

The relation of money to investment value is well understood. If the return is fixed as it is in the case of bonds and of preferred stocks the market price of the security advances when money rates decline and visa versa. Such investments are most advantageously made in a period of falling money rates and conversely they should be disposed of when money rates are tightening.

Now the same rule does not apply to stocks for the dividend rate on a stock is not fixed. Stocks may and do advance simultaneously with a rise in money rates. It is more important in the case of a stock to take into account the investment fashion of the moment. Just now, for instance, favor all runs to common stocks and against bonds. This does not affect the investment value of the bond but it does depress the price. Undoubtedly bonds can be bought profitably in times like these provided one is willing to hold them long enough but few are brave enough to buy on a declining market.

REPORT 30 CASES OF DISEASE IN COUNTY

Thirty cases of contagious disease were reported to the state health department from Outagamie-co. in the week ending June 1, according to a report received by Miss Marie Klein, county nurse. There were 14 cases of scarlet fever, 11 of whooping cough, two measles, and one each of tuberculosis, diphtheria, and chicken pox. Twenty of the cases were reported from Appleton and three from Kaukauna. The village of Kimberly, third ward, New London, and the town of Grand Chute each reported two cases and the village of Hortonville reported one.

ket. The trouble is no one knows how far the decline will go.

In the same way the market for common stock is governed by various intangibles which nevertheless must be taken into account. The speculating investment public of today thinks that almost no price is too high to pay for the stock of a successful manufacturing company or for that of a well-managed public utility. For the present, at least, no weight is given to the income return. In a bear stock market the reverse is true.

Every unfavorable item is magnified many times and market prices fall far below values.

There is no known rule for reading the popular mind in these matters and yet the attempt must be made if one is to achieve the best results. The speculator always goes with the market. It is often wise for the investor to go against the market.

The Household Plan

for family loans

THE Household loan plan was originated more than fifty years ago. Its purpose is to advance funds to families for domestic use. There are scores of reasons why money is needed—for the expense of illness—to group and pay scattered bills—to buy necessary things for the home.

Under this plan, you can secure immediate, confidential and friendly financial assistance.

$100 • $200 • $300
at Reduced Rate

The Household Plan provides immediate funds on the easiest of terms—twenty months to repay, and a reduction of nearly one-third in rate. Under this plan, the new low rate is as follows:

$100 loan, average monthly cost $1.32
$200 loan, average monthly cost $2.63
$300 loan, average monthly cost $3.94

How We Make Loans

A $100 loan is payable $5.00 per month, plus interest. The first month, the interest charge is $2.50 and the last month it is only 13 cents. The average monthly cost is $1.32. Other amounts in proportion.

You Get the Entire Amount

There are no fees or deductions. If loans are repaid sooner than twenty months, the total cost is less. Loans are made to families, and no outside signers are required.

FREE—The Household Expense Record helps you plan your expenses and fully explains the Household Loan Plan. Free on request.

HERO OR "FALL GUY"
Everyone is of course now familiar with the Illinois congressman who voted for the highest penalty for infraction of the prohibition laws only to be brought to trial in Florida because there was found in one of his trunks a ten gallon keg of rum and in another twelve quarts of the same fiery stuff. It came to pass however that the congressman was innocent, and so found by the jury, because his brother-in-law who accompanied him on the trip to Cuba testified that he put the keg of rum and the bottles too in the trunks all unbeknown to the innocent and nearly blind congressman who unwittingly permitted himself to be used as a carrier for the obnoxious liquid. It looked like a close call for the congressman but anyway he got away and the presumption of his innocence still rules supreme.
But the brother-in-law who played this low-down trick upon the congressman has been arrested and of course in due time will be brought to trial. The case against him looks clear but looks have a way of deceiving people. While he will have to admit that he put enough rum in the congressman's trunks to start a young saloon it by no means follows that he has been guilty of a violation of the law, for, no doubt, he did it in a playful manner, more as a jest upon the statesman in the family than anything else, and with the intention of calling the congressman's attention to the situation before they arrived back in the land where rum is forbidden and ceases to be a joke.
Coming across from Havana, what, with the flying fish cavorting over the waters, the lazy gull swooping down to pick up a bit of crust and the sharks snapping their grimy jaws at everything in sight, the brother-in-law clear forgot all about the big ten gallon keg and the dozen quarts of that smooth and seductive Jamaica rum. One does so much in the comfortable deck chairs while sailing southern seas. Surely a man ought not be arrested and imprisoned for merely forgetting to expose a joke. At any rate something like that will be the question put up to the next Florida jury. It will probably secure not only an acquittal but perhaps an apology from the court as well. The ways of the defense in prohibition cases, like those of the "heathen Chinese", are mild and bland though difficult to understand.

TOUGH ON OLD GUARD
President Hoover doesn't seem to be a diplomat at all. The diplomatic Old Guard must be greatly disappointed in him. He actually seems to think that the way to disarm is to disarm—though as every true diplomat of the old school knows, the way to disarm is to build more armament.
The president believes that the smaller the nations' fighting forces, the smaller temptation there will be to fight, and the less people will think about fighting. And also that the important thing about navies is their relative size—that any given ratio will work just about the same whether the powers in the same class each have 500 warships or 50. And he lays down the strange rule—strange, that is, to the jingo and war dogs—that the important and desirable thing is not to fix a limit above which armament shall not go, but to reduce the armaments which already exist and whose expense and rivalry are oppressing and bedeviling the world.
Worse still, there are warm responses to this doctrine from England, our great sea rival, and strong probability that the new British government, dominated by a Labor party devoted to peace and friendship with America, will cooperate with our president in putting such doctrine into practice.

CHURCHES AND WORSHIP
A liberal Jewish congregation, after a number of years of secular activities of a recreational and social nature, has now voted to concentrate all its efforts on worship and religious education. The committee which recommended the change of policy reported that "the voice of the synagog is drowned out in the midst of the tumult and noise of many activities, which can be carried on as well, if not better, elsewhere. The hope that young people would be attracted to worship and religious study through the magnetism of dance, plays, athletics, and parties has not been realized. The appeal of the synagog is not heightened through the bait of amusement."

The leader of the congregation defines the chief function of the church to be "to call the people to the worship of God, the meditation upon the spiritual realities of life and the education of Jews, young and old, in the law and ethics of Judaism."

This action in a Jewish congregation should interest many of the large Christian churches. The effort to provide wholesome recreation and social life within church groups has been widespread. Congregations erecting new churches have devoted more space to club rooms, libraries, gymnasiums and parlors than to the auditorium proper where regular services of worship are held. There are many who have questioned whether the churches were wise to broaden their field of activity in this way, and have asked for proof that this work, done in competition with schools, clubs and civic organizations, had any true connection with religion.

There is an even broader significance to the action taken by the Jewish congregation and by the statement of its leader. We refer to the entrance of some religious organizations into the field of politics. The conviction is rapidly growing that the church has no business in politics directly or indirectly, and that it ought to confine itself to the worship of God and things moral and spiritual. It may be that this interference in public affairs has been one of the causes of lessened popular interest in church that has been so much discussed. It is a matter that the churches will have to decide for themselves and it is a question that cannot be ignored. The theory of our government is that there should be an entire separation of church and state and it seems to us that carried to its logical conclusion, this means complete disassociation of churches from politics.

FRENCH DEBT SETTLEMENT
One of the most satisfactory features of the allies' new settlement with Germany is that it opens the way to American settlement with France. That country still owes us several billions, and is the only important debtor whose debt has not yet been adjusted on a final, official basis of payment.
It was supposed when the Mellon-Berenger agreement was made a couple of years ago that it would be ratified by the French parliament. France, however, has stalled along as before. Premier Poincare, who favors this settlement, has been making payments as if it were really in effect. But he has not commanded enough parliamentary support to obtain ratification.
The French parliament has held all along that German reparations and allied debts to America were inseparably bound up together. The United States government has always felt obliged to maintain, for diplomatic reasons, the fiction that they had nothing to do with each other. It would be good news to learn that they are closely enough connected that France will feel able to make a permanent settlement with us as soon as the new agreement with Germany is out of the way. Many French statesmen, however, will be inclined to hold out for more favorable terms.

Seen And Heard In New York
BY RICHARD MASSOCK
New York—Apartment dwellers can attest to the truth of the old saying that a dog's bark is worse than his bite.
Even a terrier's bark at 2 a. m. can cause a disturbance far out of proportion to the size of its source.
The big berthas of canine cannonading, however, are the Great Danes. Their basso howling is, to say the least, non-conducive to sweet repose. For that and other reasons, they are seldom found in city cubicles, where their vocal blasts are apt to sway the pictures on the wall.
The mother of Judith Anderson, the actress, nevertheless has tried to keep a Great Dane in her apartment. His name is Rex and he has the usual bulk and sound volume, with, in addition, a spirit that craves adventure.
In order, therefore, to escape the confines of four walls—which, the neighbors say, he has sometimes caused to tremble—Rex learned to open the apartment door. Out in the hall is one of those automatic push-button elevators. Rex also learned that sometimes the elevator door is left open by the tenants.
It is said that Rex soon began to watch for the open door. He would leap into the car at every opportunity and then sit in wait for someone to take him down to the street. Nobody ever did. In fact, his bulk defeated his purpose. The tenants complained that they couldn't enter while the dog was there. As a consequence, Rex is reported confined to quarters.
A local sports writer also has tried to keep a Great Dane in his upstairs domicile. He related once how he took home a puppy, in his pocket. A year later it caused $65 damage in a delicatessen merely by wagging its tail.
GLORIFIED RESTAURANT
An international chef, a Park avenue maitre d'hotel and a Broadway maitre d'hotel will serve the dining and dancing wants of New York society at the newly-smart Central Park casino, being backed financially by William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Adolph Zukor and others of the city's rich.
The chef is Beaumont, formerly of a British embassy and a Fifth avenue hotel. The maitre d'hotel is Rene Black, late of a Park avenue restaurant and a Pasadena, Cal., golf club. The orchestra leader is Emil Coleman, whose boys heretofore have played in night clubs.
Breakfast for horseback riders, luncheon and tea for untown ladies and dinner and supper for fashionable couples will be the Casino routine from 8 a. m. to 2 the next a. m.
There has never, says Sidney Solomon, the operator, been anything in New York like this combination of black glass ballroom, silver conservatory, tulip pavilion and knotty-pine breakfast room, designed as a gathering place for "the cultural life of the city."
The horsemen of Central park, for instance, have been neglected. Presumably they have had to gulp their toast and coffee if they got in an early morning canter. Now they can stop, after a gallop, for eggs and bacon, and even change clothes in the Casino for the trip to the office.
They can't, however, bring their horses, picturesque as that might be. Parking is to be restricted to automobiles.

PREVENTION OF GALLSTONES
Maybe people who live in tall houses would not have gallstones if they would use the stairs instead of the elevator.
Dr. E. Stanley Ryerson of Toronto points out that gallstones are usually formed of series of laminated layers of cholesterol, bile pigment and calcium—a substance from the bile. He believes the laminated character of gallstones is attributable to periods of superabundant cholesterol in the blood and in the bile, coincident with attacks of gall bladder inflammation, the attacks perhaps passing as "bilious attacks," "indigestion," "gas" because they seem too mild to be called by a more serious name.
It is an old saying that the victim of gallstones is fair, fat and 40. Must we say she is fatuous also? If she has to have the doctor routed out in the night to subdue the "indigestion" or the "gas" that seems to "press upon the heart," we must. Of course not every victim of "cholecystitis" or of gallstones (cholelithiasis) is fair, fat, 40, fatuous and belching gas. Some times a skinny like has all the symptoms and a successful operation—meaning they strike pay dirt. X-rays or no X-rays, it isn't every gallstone operation that strikes ore, I can tell you. In fact it is becoming increasingly customary for the surgeon to make no definite promises about what he is going to find in there. It is just like an oil well proposition—your prospector sinks a shaft if you say the word, and if he strikes anything it's yours.
Dr. Ryerson argues that if the patient has gall bladder inflammation, it is advisable to try to reduce the amount of cholesterol in the system, and the best way to accomplish this is by eliminating from the diet items that contain considerable cholesterol, chiefly yolk of egg, cream, liver, brains, and animal fat. Besides excluding the items mentioned, the patient should keep the total quantity of food consumed within the limits of a maintenance ration, that is, take only sufficient food to maintain normal weight, and not enough to cause increase of weight.
But that isn't all. No, no, that's pretty tough for these good eaters, but there's more bad medicine to come.
Having cruelly forbidden the patient to gorge, Dr. Ryerson next turns his attention to the factor of biliary stasis, you know, stagnation of the bile, sluggishness—and all that. Not sluggish liver, please understand. The doctor suggests how to prevent this sad state of the bile. Yes, you guessed it. Exercise. Deplorable, isn't it? But a little exercise is not nearly so boring as having an operation, after all; and I am happy to report that Dr. Ryerson agrees with me in advocating walking as the ideal form of exercise. Six miles of oxygen on the hoof every day—this is my suggestion. Dr. Ryerson just says walking is good. He advocates also breathing exercise. I suggest that the breathing exercise described in detail by Dr. Clella Duell Mosher in her book "Personal Hygiene for Women" (Stanford University Press) will meet the indications perfectly.
Finally, Dr. Ryerson recommends a small dose of epsom salts each morning on rising, but not enough to produce diarrhea. I do not second this motion, but I include it here because I am trying to describe Ryerson's method.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Monkeyshines
I have had chronic nephritis for my knowledge for five years. Please advise me if you think epsom salts baths are beneficial in chronic nephritis. I am 50 years of age. (S. H. E.)
Answer—No. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for general advice for your trouble.

Black Tea
Please let me know where to buy the black tea for making your hair dye. (F. M.)
Answer—It isn't my hair dye I haven't tried it on my own hair, but I intend to when I get around to it if I have any left to try it on. It was a suggestion sent in by a reader. She advised frequent washing of the hair with a solution of copperas (that is iron sulphate) in black tea, perhaps half a teaspoonful of the copperas in a pint of ordinary black tea. Some readers praise this; some say it is not satisfactory. All I can tell you is that it is harmless for darkening the hair. Buy the black tea in any jewelry or millinery establishment, if you are not on speaking terms with your grocer.

Feet Wet
Great deal of trouble with my feet. They perspire and burn and smell. Have tried all kinds of shoes and even had some made to order and I got no relief. (B. C.)
Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for instructions for care of feet and proper footwear. Pour into each shoe an ounce or two of formalin solution, swish it about so as to saturate all the lining, then drain it into the next shoe. Set the shoes to dry for a day or so, in the sun if possible, before you wear them again. At the same time you might mop the skin of the soles with the same solution, and allow it to dry before dressing. Do all this once a week. The strength of formalin solution for the purpose is that prepared by putting one ounce of the standard liquor formaldehyde in a half pint bottle and filling the bottle with water. Keep the formalin off from your fingers.

No Chance
Please send me your advice for a woman who is soon to meet the ordeal of the change. (H. S.)
Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for advice about change of life. It is no ordeal if you don't believe all you read in the nostrum ads.

INDIAN ROADS FIGHT BUSES
Railways of India are making strenuous efforts to meet the growing competition of motor bus lines. Rail passenger travel is dropping off and earnings are declining. Some railways are improving their services and reducing fares, but these have not given all the results desired. One line has started rail motor service, and a number have inaugurated bus lines as feeders. One road, which has lines paralleling the highway, has added 52 passenger trains and 48 short-distance shuttle trains. In spite of this the number of passengers carried last year decreased by 300,000 as compared with 1927. Passenger earnings, however, were maintained as the average distance traveled by passengers showed an increase.

GREYNA GREEN NOW PROSAIC
Elopement of an heiress and a Cambridge undergraduate to Gretna Green recently has revealed that the famous hymenial haven has lost its romance. The couple are reported to have traveled in the most prosaic manner by automobile, and on arrival they were received, not by the historic blacksmith at his anvil, but by his wife, with a form to fill out about the duration of their residence in Scotland. No more do ardent grooms-to-be defy highwaymen and shoot down the horses of pursuing fathers. Wedding at the old anvil are decreasing to such an extent that last year Carlisle municipal authorities invited seven couples to be married at the forge under the auspices of the "Civic Week Publicity Committee."

FLASHES FROM HOLLYWOOD
BY ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood—He saved up candle stumps used them for footlights around the edges of the old table in the backyard that served for his stage, and vented his theatrical ambitions on a helpless group of four sisters and three brothers. They laughed at his antics—they had to.
"If you don't," warned young Hal Skelly, "I'll beat the stuffin' out of you!"
They were sensible, and laughed. And the family shows grew into neighborhood events in that small Iowa town of Davenport, and young Hal collected potatoes, buttons, tops, marbles and other childhood treasures as tributes from his coterie of youthful "theatergoers." These housewives of the Skelly block wanted to borrow potatoes, they knew there would be plenty in Hal's store-room.
NO FORCED LAUGHS
So that went on, until Hal, the born showman, incurable, ran away from home and joined a circus. There may have been times in his earlier theatrical career when he had to repeat his boyish threat to get a forced laugh—but he has lived to see the "big top" of the circus days replaced by a more remunerative "big top." But he has been starring has been blessed, because he had to star on his second.
It is Skelly's boast that acting in a talkie rounds out his theatrical experience, for he has acted in all branches of showmanship from a medicine tent-show to Broadway and the talkies. But he forgets—he never graced a silent-movie.
RANDOM NOTES
Colleen Moore's contract with First National ends when she completes her second all-talkie, now in production. Where she will go next remains undecided. But Colleen and husband, John McCormick, plan long vacation before more work. Hollywood may as well prepare for a new invasion, this time an onslaught of "masters of ceremonies" out of jobs because the talking screen displaced their stage presentation. Norma Talmadge has begun work in her first talkie, "Tin Pan Alley." But Lillian Gish is still considering material for hers.

PASTOR, SENTENCED BY DOCTORS, LOOKS CALMLY UPON DEATH

"I Don't Want to Go," He Says, "the World Has Been Good to Me"

BY EDWARD STANLEY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Chicago—(AP)—Down into the silences of the "valley of the shadow of death" walks Dr. Ozora S. Davis to meet a friend — alone, fearless, confident.

Victim of an incurable malady, the noted theologian has heard surgeons pass a final sentence upon him — a year, perhaps longer, perhaps only a few days and then the book ends.

But there is no fear in the heart of this gentle, snow-haired veteran of the pulpit who rose from a shoe-less, penniless newsboy to become moderator of the Congregational church and president of one of its chief seminaries, the Chicago
Theological Seminary.

True, he has retired from the mod-eratorship and has become president emeritus of the seminary. But his hand is steady, his eye twinkling clear and his laughter hearty as he sits in his study in the new $1,200-000 seminary building—fruit of his 20 years as its head—talking of his life, what he has seen in his 62 years and of tomorrow.

"Excuse me if I am not as active as once," he said. "I've been a plaything for the surgeons." He tilted back in his chair, chuckling at the phrase. Dr. Davis is 62.

HAVING GOOD TIME
"Of course, I don't want to go — this is a mighty interesting world and I'm having a mighty good time in it. But I'm more afraid of it than I am of walking through the door to this study. For I know that I shall have a spiritual body to do with as I please and I won't have to worry about the aches and pains of this poor physical body."

"I'm a gentleman of leisure now.
I'm going to write some books, a biography of Victor L. Lawson, travel some and lecture to my classes. It's hard to make a Vermont
Yankee quit work, you know."

He paused and for a long moment looked out into the neat flagged, courtyard, thumbing memory's pages.

"This world has been very good to me. Think of the things I've seen — the procession of scientific marvels in time. Our problem now is how to provide personal control to direct for the common good and moral ends these tremendous engines we have devised.

"And the young people today —
they are the finest I have known.
They are more honest, fearless, more trustworthy. They do some things that make me shiver, but they insist on doing their own thinking, for which I thank God.

"I believe there is more religion in the popular mind today than ever, despite the difficulties of Protestant churches in maintaining public worship. We're still in the period of rethinking our world. There was never a great war not followed by a tide of confusion. War sweeps under all ethical distinctions and they must be re-established to fit new conditions.

SAT NEXT TO CAL

"Yes, this world has been very good to me. You must remember that I started out with very little.
Some time ago I sat next to former President Coolidge at a banquet. He was in office then. I brought home a picture taken at the banquet, showed it to my children and said:
'There was a time when I didn't have shoes.' America is the only land where I could do that."

Dr. Davis' parents were poor. The wages of a baggageman in a little Vermont town 60 years ago weren't

PLAN 110 MILES OF NEW RAILROAD IN TEXAS

Fort Worth—The Fort Worth and Denver Northern, subsidiary of the Durington system in Texas, has been chartered by the state of Texas to build 110 miles of new railroad from Childress to Pampa, Texas, by way of Shamrock. Cost of the extension will be $3,500,000. It will penetrate the wheat and small grain belt

GOOD FISHING IS STILL AVAILABLE

Excellent Fish Stories Are Started by Conservation Commission

Madison—(AP)—The conservation department has started telling fish stories. If anyone concurs with the assertion something heard that "Wisconsin's lakes are all fished out," let him go to that department and hear some of the big ones pulled from waters of the state recently.

Reports to the fish, game and forests body indicate that a few weeks warm weather have materially increased both the numbers of fishermen and the reports of good catches.

Reports of large trout caught this early in the season, include the statement from Langlade-co. that four brook trout which weighed between four and four and one-half pounds were taken. One four and three-quarters pound trout was reported from Oneida-co. near Rhinelander.

"Streams where these large trout are caught are never mentioned. The fisherman probably wants to go back to catch his prize twin brother," commission employees said.
"Reports of good pike and picker-el fishing have been coming in pretly generally through the north country, and muskellunge are being pulled in exceptionally well for this early in the season.

"Last week on the same day there were two very large muskellunge taken from Lac Vieux Desert, one weighing 41 pounds and the other 44½. During the same week a 39 pound muskie was taken out of Lake Thompson, near Rhinelander.

much. So Ozora sold papers at White River Junction. There he learned to read the clicks of a telegraph key and worked his way through Dartmouth—"every cent."
At the Hartford (Conn.) Seminary he won a travelling fellowship and two years later got his Ph. D. at the German University of Leipzig.

Pastorates in Springfield, Vt.,
Newtonville, Mass., and New Britain, Conn., held him until 1909, when he came to the seminary as president. There were 100 students then—now it has 272 full time and 237 part time students and property worth $5,000,000.

Author of 13 books on religion and many pamphlets, he has only one plumb-line for religion — the golden rule.

"As for modernism and fundamentalism—hateful words—a plague on both their houses."

Chic Hipline

THE STYLE No. 2822 strikes a new note of smartness in suburban hipline. It contributes further chic in flared fulness that dips the hem, created by shirring. Of new importance is the flatterer jabot front that does much toward breaking the width through bodice, thus giving length to the figure, for slenderness is essential this season to a smart appearance.

Local Man Is Officer Of Union

ALOIS H. Stoegbater of this city was re-elected secretary and treasurer of the Green Bay diocesan union of the Holy Name society at the annual rally Sunday at Stevens Point. Approximately 600 Appleton members of the Holy Name society were among the 7,000 persons who took part in a parade which was two miles long. Green Bay was awarded the 1930 rally after T. Pere and Kaukauna had withdrawn their invitations.

Prof. Charles G. Stangel, principal of the Lincoln high school at Manitowoc, was re-elected president, and Dr. D. S. Rice, Stevens Point, Peter Vandenberg, Manitowish, J. W. Kirchner, Oshkosh, and J. R. Laughlin, Chilton, were re-elected vice-presidents.

More than 4,000 attended the pontifical field mass at St. Joseph academy, read by Bishop Paul P. Rhode. The Rev. Francis E. Murphy of St. John cathedral, Milwaukee, who spoke at the mass, declared that the Holy Name society was the bulwark of the church in its fight against the third great attack which Christianity now is suffering at the hands of Paganism.

M. S. Szymczak, Chicago, clerk of the Cook-Cook Superior court, delivered a patriotic address in the afternoon, urging loyalty for both church and state, and emphasizing the necessity of true teaching as the only method of eliminating crime.

The Tynmites

CCROSS the cornfield, high and low, the Tynmites were glad to go. Their funny friend the scarecrow led the way in merry glee. "I don't know where we're bound for now, but we will reach that place somehow. I hope it is a land of fun and other things," said he.

"We're with you," shouted Clow-ur. "Good! I'm just as happy as can be. This being in the open makes a fellow feel just fine. There's nothing like the real fresh air and look, the sunshine's glow is rare. When I am seeking pleasure it's the great outdoors for mine."

"You bet," said Scouty. "I feel great, and frankly, I can hardly wait until we reach some little town with queer folks living there. It's been some time, it seems to me, since we have been where we could be some grandly just who treat us nice, and don't give us a scare."

Just then they heard a funny noise. The scarecrow whispered, "Listen, boys! What made that sound? It was right near, we'd best investigate. I guess I'm not afraid. Are you? Aw, gee, there's just one thing to do. We'll search and see what we can find. Cope on, don't hesitate."

They traveled through the corn real fast. Then Coppy yelled, aloud, "At last! I see what made that crazy noise." The scarecrow promptly sighed, "Don't let him worry you," said he. "I'll walk up first. You follow me. Perhaps, if he's a friendly mule, he'll give us all a ride."

Alas, alack! The poor scarecrow was sorry. "Course he didn't know that mules that show nice friendliness are really rather queer. He walked up to the fat mule's side. 'Look out! Look out!' wee Carpy cried. Just then the mule kicked Mister Scarecrow sailing through the air."

(The Scarecrow is in a sad state in the next story.)

THE NEW Saint and Sinner

By Anne Austin

© 1929 by NEA Service, Inc.

IT did not occur to Tony Tarver that she should make an effort to chat brightly with Mary Burns. She did not feel bright or chatty or friendly. Instead, she gave up her bedside chair to the girl next-door, sprawled her own long, slim body in an old-fashioned rocking chair near the window and looked on with drawn brows, scowling eyes and tightened mouth.

Her withdrawal was apparently a relief of Mary Burns, who had been obviously at a loss for words which could possibly interest this dazzling creature from a world entirely foreign to her own. She seemed glad to be free to chatter along, in her Southern drawl, with Sandy's mother, with whom she was on the best of terms.

Her conversation was full of little clucking sounds of endearment and of strange but picturesque phrases which Tony had never heard before. She had said, "You'd die laughin' to hear Sandy mock me," but at the very thought of the teasing, intimate friendship which that remark implied, Tony clenched her hands until the nails cut the palms.

But Tony listened, and herself knew the impulse to imitate that light drawl, broken so frequently by a shallow, breathless little laugh. "Yes, Miz Ross it sure is grand to have a day off. Sometimes I think I couldn't wear a two when I came. And just a year ago when I came Naxth I was wearin' a size one and a half. I honestly was. That's what comes Sandy thinks my feet and hands are funny, they're so teeny, but lawdy, there are hundreds of girls down home that's got feet as little as mine, and — Ooh, did I joggle the bed and hurt your poor darlin' foot? Mary's awful sorry," and Tony saw her nuzzle a kiss into Mom Ross's plump neck.

"I was just thinkin'," Mom Ross confessed with a chuckle, "that 'poor darlin' foot' of mine takes a size seven shoe! Who's your date to-night, Mary? Don't tell me you ain't got one, 'cause I'll know better."

The vivid little thing bridled and laughed, and for some reason the pain that had Tony's heart in its clutch lightened a little.

"Yes, I have got a date, but shucks, it don't amount to a hill o' beans!" Mary Burns confessed. "It's just that boy in the necktie department I was tellin' you and Sandy about. My! I thought Sandy'd die when I told him his name was Applejack—didn't you?"

Tony saw delighted color flood the dark, and little face at the very idea of Sandy Ross's being jealous. "Well, he ain't got no call to be jealous of Roy Applejack or any other man," she protested. "You know, Miz Ross, I wouldn't look at another man, much less have a date with one, if Sandy wasn't busy puttin' in around that old airplane of his so much. It's just awful! I didn't have but one date with Sandy the whole week before he went to New York. 'Course I'd a heap sight rather go with Sandy, but a girl's got to have some hum—"

Tony heard no more, for there was a sudden crashing and thundering in her ears. The other two, who had heard nothing went on chatting comfortably....

NEXT: Mom Ross, matchmaker.

For many years Richard Wahl has been helping bakers all over the country to bake better bread. He has learned every secret of the baker's art . . . all the skill of modern baking science.

His ambition has been to make a better bread than anyone has ever baked before . . . a loaf with a flavor people regarded as impossible in bakers bread—the rich, appetizing flavor of finest home baking.

Now he has worked out a method by which he can bake that bread . . . a new method, the result of his years of experience.

This bread will be called Old Home bread because of its remarkable homelike goodness. We are sure you will find it a loaf superior to ordinary bread. Old Home bread has the real home baked flavor . . . more lasting freshness . . . abundant extra nourishment.

FAMOUS BAKER
COMES TO EAST-ERN WISCONSIN

Dick Wahl Will Make His Home and Bake Bread
Here

Richard Wahl, long recognized in baking circles as one of the country's most able bakers, after a search of two years for the best location, has finally chosen Eastern Wisconsin in which to establish his own bakery.

Mr. Wahl chose this section of Wisconsin, he says, because in all his search, which covered many States, he has found no territory so perfectly suited for a bakery. Here, too, he says is an ideal market for a new and finer loaf of bread . . . a loaf into which he will put all the skill of his years of expert baking.

This will be the first time that Mr. Wahl has had a bakery of his own, though he has been associated for many years in an advisory capacity with some of the greatest bakeries in the country. He is well known in his profession as one of the most scientific and able of modern bakers.

This bakery will give Mr. Wahl the opportunity to try out all his cherished ideas in his own way . . . to spare no expense or trouble in baking the finest loaf of bread possible to make.

This bread will be called Old Home, because it is as nearly as possible like the old home bread of years ago in flavor and richness,—bread that is a cherished memory by every one who has tasted it.

Old Home will be delivered early tomorrow morning to your grocer. Surely you will want to try it as soon as possible. Call your grocer early . . . try this new bread, made by Wahl's own method . . . a bread which promises to become the favorite almost overnight!

Mothers!

This new bread is the very finest food for children. It contains in abundance every element needed for rugged growth and lasting health. Authorities state that each child should have at least 6 slices of Old Home a day!

UGGIE Brandt's Fords chalked up another baseball game on the wrong side of the ledger Sunday afternoon when 3 Appleton hurlers failed to hold the slugging Wisconsin Rapids team. The final count was 9 and 8 against the Fords.

Failure of the Appleton hurling corps to have anything more on the ball than their fingers cost the game.

Young Clarence Stoffel started the melee but along about the fourth frame he found it difficult to get the horsehide within a foot of the plate and retired. Stoffel was followed by Sam Ogle, Oshkosh, who went along alright for three innings and then faded, Dats Crowe relieving him when the eighth round started.

The Fords got in plenty of hits off Specs Eastling among them being three lousy homers. But along about the time his club got out in front Specs became just so good that when the fracas was all over, the victory had been chalked up opposite his name.

Both clubs had on their hitting garments throughout the fray, Appleton getting 12 wallpops and the Rapids 13. The locals pounded out three four ply knocks, the invaders two. And as a result of the clouting several players flattened their batting averages. L. Huber of the Rapids counted four out of five Tangeen two out of three and Plummer two out of three.

Appleton Tarnow three hit two for five, Schultz two for three Kotal and Eggert each two for two.

The Rapids counted first in the initial inning when Tangeen walked and Hribenick parked the ball out of the lot in the general direction of Kimberly. The Fords got the runs back with an extra one in the three frame and it looked like a big afternoon. The scores came when Schultz hit a four bagger over the railway tracks with Crowe and Eggert resting on the pats.

In the third inning three more hits netted the Fords four more runs and things actually looked like a successful afternoon. Murphy was safe at first on a third baseman's crazy toss and went to second on the overthrow. Tarnow then doubled to center the ball hitting the fence and bounding into the field and Murphy counted. Sonny went to third on a passed ball and counted on Hillman's single, Hillman scoring when Eggert uncorked a drive that came down the potato patch north of the railway tracks.

The fourth inning saw the Rapids get back three runs and also the passing of Stoffel. Plummer started the inning with a homer and then McClain singled. L. Huber followed with a single and McClain counted on a wild throw. Stoffel walked. M. Huber and then decided he was through Ogle coming to the rescue. He forced Eastling to hit into a double play and Quinn tied out to end the uprising.

Ogle went good for three frames and he went the way of other pitchers and Dats Crowe came to the rescue. Three runs were counted off the veteran as the result of three hits, a walk and Ogle's own error of Plummer's drive. Had the pitcher fielded the ball perfectly the side would have been retired with no damage.

Trailing by one run meant little to the Fords, though, and in Appleton's half of the seventh, Sonny Tarnow knotted the county with a terrific wallop across the railroad tracks. His hit was followed by two singles but no further damage resulted.

Dats Crowe was unusually generous when he came onto the scene in the eighth inning and three straight hits resulted in a lone which broke the 8 to 3 tie and gave the Rapids the margin.

Sports Question Box
Question—Do you consider Tommy Loughran's fight with Mickey Walker as coming under the boxing commission rules requiring a champion to defend his title every six months?
Answer—No, Walker was but an overfed middleweight.

Question—Where is Patsy Clark, former Illinois backfield star coaching now?
Answer—At Butler where he is athletic director.

Question—Runner is on first and one out. Batter purposely bunts the ball intending to sacrifice but the pitcher fields it to second and forces out the runner. Should the batter be credited with a sacrifice because he bunts?
Answer—No, it is merely a force play.

Singer Not Impressive Enough In Roy Victory

BY JOHN J. ROMANO (Copyright, 1929)

NEW YORK—Al Singer required but two minutes and forty-one seconds to register a knockout over Leo Kid Roy of Canada at the local coliseum recently and started a comeback as a star in the fistie firmament. The knockout was a convincing one as Roy was knocked to the floor twice and too woozy to know what was going on when the referee halted the proceedings.

Just how much Singer suffered when he was knocked out by Ignacio Fernandez and how much he has regained is still a matter of uncertainty. Roy did not offer any appreciation. As a matter of fact Leo was on the receiving end and did not score a blow. His time was taken up trying avoid the volley of punches.

THREE YEAR OLD BATTLE FOR TURF HONORS MONDAY

Chicago—(P)—A great field of three-year-olds, one which may even surpass that of the classic Kentucky derby, will bid for glory and a $50,000 purse, in the American derby at Washington park Saturday.

A pruning out of least important of the Kentucky derby also rans, and a bigger entry of eastern horses, promises a field of more uniform excellence than that which started in the Kentucky feature.

Clyde Van Dusen, derby winner, Blue Larkspur, who regained much prestige at Belmont, Karl Eikel, Windy City, Naishapur, along with Jack High, Hermitage and High Strung, from the east, loom as the pick in the race which go a long way toward establishing the best three-year-old of the season.

K. C. BLUES TAKE A. A. LEAD WITH WINS OVER MILLERS

Brewer Hurlers Fail and Milwaukee Drops Decision to St. Paul

Chicago—(P)—The Kansas City Blues, leading the league, Monday invaded Indianapolis for the opening of a road trip which will keep them away from home 23 days, hopeful of breaking the jinx which has followed them abroad.

The Blues wound up a seven-day home stay Sunday by whipping Indianapolis twice to regain the American association peak. Dutch Zwilling's men took the first game, 11 to 4, and squeezed out a 6 to 5 decision in the second encounter. George Murray out-pitched Rube Benton, Middleton and Wingfield in the first game, and Pea Ridge Day and Nelson, outlasted Rube, Dumont, Paley and Billeheart in the second.

St. Paul trampled all over Milwaukee. The Saints hammered Buvid, Geairin and Steele for 19 hits, while Hopkins, Polli and Van Alta, also were hit hard, yielding 13 safeties.

Joe Deberry tamed Toledo with two hits in the second game and Louisville won, 1 to 0, after taking the opener by 6 to 5. The second contest was a pitching duel between Deberry and Ernie Vingard, the latter permitting only five hits.

Lee Meadows, former Pittsburgh Pirate, turned in his first victory for Indianapolis, beating Harlan Wysons of Columbus in the first frame of a doubleheader. The Indians conquered, 4 to 3, but dropped the second game, 7 to 4.

The game was the last this season for Joe Shields. The second baseman left Monday morning for his home at La Crosse where he will attend summer school and won't return until next September. Coming immediately after Ritten leaves the squad, Shields absence probably will be felt plenty. And who says it's pipe managing a baseball club. Ask Eddie Kotal. He'll tell you he wishes he was back at Kimberly.

Just whom Kotal will send to second next week is a question. He might send Bowers there and perhaps Shields won't be missed. Bowers is reported to have played the infield out west and there's no question about the ground he can cover.

All the homers were gold karat wallpops. The one Tarnow hit went up a mile high and Tangeen in left for the Rapids started to run then halted and watched the ball come down away over the railway tracks. Schultz and Eggert's drives also were real smashes.

Pete Lepine was behind the bag and didn't get away so hot with the athletes. Some of his guesses were away off and the boys got plenty of it. Mertz wasn't half bad on the bases and he'll rate ace high with the Fords for calling Eastling out when the Rapids pitcher failed to touch second while rounding the bag. Kotal called for the ball and completed the play, Mertz calling the runner out amidst a lot of yelling from the Rapids team.

BADGERS, HUSKIES TO ROW SATURDAY
Madison—(P)—The middle-west's only offering of the season in crew racing will be presented on Lake Mendota Saturday in a two-mile race between the University of Wisconsin and the University of Washington.

Coached by Mike Murphy, who stroked Huskie crews in 1921 and 1922, Wisconsin will row its only race in the west, before going east to the Poughkeepsie regatta.

SUGGESTS BIG TEN WOULD RATHER BE THE BIG EIGHT
BY LAWRENCE PERRY (Copyright, 1929)
NEW YORK—Anyone who has followed national sporting trends closely must wonder whether or not the present situation in the Western conference has elements that do not appear on the surface.

For example there has for some time been a feeling that the Big Ten as at present constituted is somewhat unwieldy and that a combination of eight universities would not only result in a more compact system of scheduling games but would admit of closer supervision.

Iowa, for instance, is really out of the geographical line of the western conference. The Hawkeyes have been regarded in some conference quarters as naturally a Missouri valley institution which belongs with Nebraska, Iowa State and other members of the Big Six.

It would seem to the writer that a desire exists in the Western conference to come into closer touch with the east rather than southwest. Pittsburgh, for example, has been spoken of as a very desirable prospect for conference membership inasmuch as it would stand with Ohio State at Columbus and Michigan at Ann Arbor as contact universities between the middle Atlantic states and the midland commonwealths.

Certainly, the intersectional idea is growing constantly and an organization such as the Western conference which embraces ten universities simply cannot do duty by this organization when it comes to the making of schedules and at the same time develop relationships with eastern, far western and southern universities.

Charges of proselyting and subsidizing athletics which a high school coach has brought against Purdue will be considered by Major Grid fifth, the Big Ten athletic commissioner. What the findings will be the writer has no idea but it will be surprising if the Iowa case is not found to have kindled some such conflagration as used to sweep the prairies of this midland region.

ATHLETICS COP FROM WRIGHTSTOWN, 15-3 AT INTERLAKE PARK

Two Visiting Pitchers Fail to Hold Heavy Hitting Fourth Warders

SLUGGING the ball to all corners of Interlake park, Appleton Athletics walked off with an easy victory Sunday afternoon. The victim was Wrightstown of the Little Fox league and the score was 15 to 3. The victory was doubly sweet for the Athletics because they lost to Wrightstown in the season's first game several weeks ago.

The A's combed-Kussow and Freeman for 20 hits while the Mers got 11 off Brautigan. The Appleton hurler was tight in the pinches, however, and backed up by snappy fielding by his mates, the Fourth ward tossers breezed through to victory.

The Athletics got down to business in the first inning and scored one run which might have been more except for some poor base stealing and a force out. In the second frame they counted seven times on six solid swipes and four errors. Other runs came in the third, sixth and seventh innings.

Wrightstown scored one run in the second on three successive hits but was held scoreless until the eighth inning when they scored once more and did likewise in the ninth. The losers threatened seriously in the seventh when Brautigan filled the bases with none out but when the fourth man fanned the A's put on a double play to end the proceedings.

BABE SEES GEHRING HIT TWO HOMERS
Almost Tosses His Hat Into Crowd When Lou Uncorks Second Blow

New York—(P)—Babe Ruth may be too ill to play baseball these days but he can't keep away from the game that made him famous.

With his wife, the former Claire Hodgson, the Babe was a spectator at Sunday's game between the Yankees and the Browns. The famous slugger didn't go near the Yankee bench but sat in a box along the right field stands.

He stood up and cheered when his friendly rival, Lou Gehrig, hit his thirteenth home run and was dissuaded only with difficulty from tossing away his expensive hat when "Columbia Lou" shot his fourteenth into the right field bleachers later. Still a bit weak from a severe cold, Ruth was able nevertheless, to talk a good game of baseball.

"I hope they keep up this hitting against the Browns and the Tigers," he said. "I'll be back to help them against the Athletics—the only team we have to beat."

Giants And Pirates Break Winning Streak; Gehrig Gets Two Homers

Defeat of Two Leaders Permits Cubs, Cards to Improve Positions

THE weekend campaign in the major leagues found both the Giants and the Pirates arriving at the end of their spurts, but giving their opponents no guarantee against an immediate resumption. Red Lucas pitched one of the best games he has flashed this season to shade the veteran Jack Scott and the Giants by 2 to 1 at Redland field Sunday as the Pirates crumbled before an eighth-round assault at Ebbets field where the Robins took a 9 to 6 decision.

The defeat of both of the teams currently rated as the most dangerous in the National league enabled the Cardinals and the Cubs to improve their positions a bit. The Red birds had some difficulty with Claude Willoughby, but lunched their hits in such a way as to win by 5 to 4. Jess Haines was tight in the pinches, and had to be as the phils out hit his support.

Artie Nehf found Young Ben Cantwell a tough opponent in Chicago and the Cubs won by 2 to 1 only because Hack Wilson nicked Cantwell for a home run in the seventh after Hornsby had walked. The Braves had scored in their own half of the round on Maguire's double and Harper's single. Each side totaled only four hits.

The Cards climbed to within half a game of the Pirates and remained one contest ahead of the third-place Bruins the margin between the Pirates and the Giants was unchanged at three and one half games.

The battle of Brooklyn, a special game arranged after the regular schedule was drawn, was lost by the Pirates because Jess Petty weakened in the eighth, permitting the Robins to score four times. Doug McVeeny had been driven from the boxing seventh when the Pirates assumed a lead of 7 to 6 and so surrendered to Clise Dudley, his successor, official credit for the victory.

With Babe Ruth in the stands as a spectator, the Yankees stampeded the Browns by 17 to 2 in the series opener Sunday. Lou Gehrig and Bill Dickey led the early assault with home runs Gehrig, with two and Dickey with one and after that, the Yanks coasted, hitting everything that was served to them.

The champions collected 15 safe drives off the assortment of St. Louis pitchers led through the box by Rip Collins. Henry Johnson, held the Browns to four safe hits in seven innings to offset his customary wildness, which reached the height of seven passes off Wiley Moore finished the last two rounds. The victory sent the Yanks into second place, seven full games behind the leading Athletics. The Browns trail by no more games, but concede eight percentage points to the Yanks, who have lost fewer contests.

Gehrig's two homers sent his total for the season to 14, giving him the lead in his own league and sending him into a tie with Klein of the Phillies and Hafez of the Cardinals in the Inter-league race.

With the Athletics and the White Sox idle, awaiting the anticipated feast of the Mackmen this week, action along the rest of the American league front was confined to Boston and Washington. George Uhle, who won nine games before losing one met his second defeat of the season when he weakened toward the finish at Braves field permitting the Red Sox to score six times in the last two innings to gain a 7 to 6 margin. Ed Morris went the route for Boston.

Ad Liska, the promising recruit from the American association, pitched up to his best advantage, twice in turning back the Indians by 5 to 2 at Washington. The Senators clubbed John Miljus for four runs in the third and Liska coasted in with only one bad inning—the fourth, which saw both the Cleveland runs scored.

SETS NEW MARK FOR CENTURY AT COLLEGE TRACK CARNIVAL

George Simpson, Ohio, Dashes Off 100 Yards in 9.4 Seconds

CHICAGO—(P)—A lanky sprinter, who has a track career was inspired by the desperation of a high school coach who lacked a dash man, holds the title of the "world's fastest human" and a new record for the 100 yard dash.

George Simpson, who will assume a place among Ohio University's athletic immortals along with Chick Harley, won his first century race in 1923 after his high school coach, in desperation had urged him to come out. Saturday in the N. C. A. meet, Simpson did the "hundred" in an amazing .994 victory over Claude Racey, the Dixie flyer, from Rice Institute.

Simpson also set a new meet record in the 220 yard dash, when he trimmed Eddie Toland, sensational Michigan Negro, in 20.8, one-tenth of a second faster than the record jointly held by Roland Locke of Nebraska, and Bracey.

Simpson's double victory, with a first and second by Richard Rockaway in the hurdles, Pete Rasmus' world record toss in the discus and two points by Ueheli in the hammer throw, gave Ohio state 50 points, enough to win the meet. Washington scored 42 points to finish second and Illinois was third with 34 1/2.

Rut Walter of Northwestern, won the championship in the 440 yard dash, winning in 47.9 over a fine field, but Virgil Gist, of Chicago, was forced to relinquish the $80 yard run title to Genung of Washington who won in 1:55. Gist was second. Wilbur Getz of Alfred University, New York, scored a surprise victory in the mile, dethroning Rufus Kiser of Washington. In a 4:29.4 race, Orval Martin, Purdue star, was second a few inches behind Getz, with Kiser third.

Dave Abbott of Illinois, again took the two-mile championship by a close victory over Manning of Wichita. The time was 9:30, more than a second slower than Abbott's record for the meet. Kane of Ohio Wesleyan, gave up the high hurdle championship to Rockaway, while Steve Anderson succeeded to the 220 yard low hurdle title.

RUTH TAKING HIS HEALTH SERIOUSLY AS AGE INCREASES

Big Bam Hopes to Be "Socking 'Em" When He Reaches 40 Years

BY ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—When Babe Ruth returns to the game, as he believes he will shortly, he intends to take care of himself, on, as well as off, the field.

For perhaps the first time in his career, Ruth, in his present illness, has been brought face to face with the fact that at the age of 35 after more than 15 years in the major leagues, he has reached a point where he cannot run the risks he once felt he could do and laugh at. Not so this time. The Babe is serious when he says:

"I've done a lot of foolish things in my life but this is a good lesson for me. I'll take care of myself from now on."

"How much longer will the Babe last?" One hears this question asked on many sides.

In many respects it is a marvelous achievement of the Babe to have kept his top form as long as he has. He rose to as spectacular heights as he has ever known in the world's series last year as he closes his fifteenth seasons. Yet actually he was in weakened and injured condition sufficiently so for many an athlete to have stayed in bed or on the "bench."

"I can't help playing hard when I am in there," declares Ruth. "I've got to give everything I have to the game."

One day last winter, the Babe, in gym suit growled as his trainer massaged and punched his mid-section.

"Remember you once told me you figured to be still going strong at 40? Do you still feel that way?" he was asked.

"Sure thing," shot back the big fellow. "I may slow up a little but I still will be in there socking 'em as long as I can get up to the plate."

That perhaps sums up the case. There is little doubt Ruth still would be "socking 'em" if he had to be wheeled up to the bat.

HEAVYWEIGHTS ON WEEK'S FIGHT CARD

Luis Vicentini and Earl Mastro Booked for Chicago Stadium

NEW YORK (AP)—Otto von Porat, Norwegian heavyweight and Emmett Pocco of Elwood City, Pa., are to battle ten rounds in the feature bout of the Chicago stadium's show Wednesday night. On Thursday Napoleon Jack Dorval, another heavyweight hopeful, meets Les Marviner, the hard-hitting star who once played football for the university of Illinois, in the main bout at the opening outdoor show at the White City stadium.

At the Chicago stadium Monday night there will be ten round duels between Luis Vicentini, Chile and Tommy Grogan, Omaha, light weights and Earl Mastro, Chicago, and Midget Mike O'Dowd, Columbus, bantamweights.

In New York, the best offering of the week is a ten round battle between Jack Berg, English light-weight and Stanislaus Lozoya, of Chile. They fight at the Queensboro stadium Tuesday night. Light weights also furnish the chief attraction at Cleveland Tuesday night. Billy Wallace of Cleveland, tackling Eddie Anderson of Wyoming.

At Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Tuesday, Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., and Archie Bell of New York, open the outdoor season in the anthracite region with a ten round bantamweight engagement.

BRITISH AMATEUR GOLF MEET OPENS

Sandwich, England (AP)—A stiff northeast breeze swept the English channel over St. Georges course here Monday and made the first nine holes of play in the British amateur open championship difficult.

The big field was reduced by a dozen scratches, including F. W. Styles and Ernest Holderness, who can't make his try for the third amateur title because of the change in the British government. He is a divisional captain and he is needed at Whitehall.

There is a large element of youth in the meeting, including 23 men who have played in the British boys championships the last few years.

Mrs. Hoover Sends June Bride Armful Of Roses

Washington (AP)—The happiest June bride in Washington is Mrs. Lofton Stuart Wesley, formerly Miss Isabel Skillman Stabler, to whom Mrs. Hoover sent an armful of lovely roses, the choicest that grow in the White House conservatory on her wedding day.

Mrs. Wesley was married early this week in the quaint little Friends meeting house on East which President and Mrs. Hoover often attend and where the bride, who is a graduate of Smith college and took her master degree from Columbia, has been secretary of the meeting house for several years. The bridegroom is a descendant of John Wesley of England, son of Mrs. Wesley of San Antonio, Texas, and the late Enoch A. Wesley of Kentucky.

Mrs. Hoover could not attend the ceremony on account of a dinner party at the White House, but she is quite accustomed to the ceremony of the Friends. The bride was accompanied by her father, Mr. Albert Stabler, who read the marriage certificate on a scroll of parchment—and saw it signed by the 175 guests present.

Besides her several teas of the week for congressional women, Mrs. Hoover has found time for many

NEW STEAMSHIP RECORD EXPECTED ON BREMEN TRIP

Giant Boat, Ready to Start June 16, Will Carry 2,000 Passengers

Bremen, Germany (AP)—A record run of six days from Bremen is expected of the Europa's sister ship, the new four-propelled transatlantic giant, the Bremen, now ready for her maiden trip to New York June 16.

Her giant size has compelled the North German Lloyd to reorganize completely its docking facilities in New York and move from Manhattan to a Brooklyn pier, the largest in the harbor. The vessel measures 910 feet in length, with a 75.5 foot beam.

It is the big vessel's funnels more than any other factor that give her characteristic appearance, markedly differing from that of other great liners. Their unusual shortness, in the first place, lend her an air of lying very deep in the water. The funnels are only two in number, moreover, the unnecessary third and fourth, ordinarily faked for appearance's sake, having been omitted.

Both funnels, built with the ordinary rounded surface in front but tapering to a V-shaped point behind, are constructed according to a principle familiar to the physicist, but altogether new in shipbuilding. By use of this principle, company officials believe, the great vessel's wind resistance will be cut down thus enabling her to maintain a high speed in spite of the bulk which provides roomy, spacious quarters for her 2,000 passengers.

The second wholly new feature of the vessel, the tremendous sweep of open space in its social rooms, running almost the full length of B deck without interrupting partitions, also is due to the construction of the funnels, or rather of the smoke conductors or pipes carrying the smoke from the engines up to the funnels.

Instead of passing directly up through the center of the vessel, as is the usual method, these big pipes are constructed so that they bend to pass up the sides of the ship and then back to the funnels above, thus obviating the necessity of covering them with partitions on every deck through the body of the ship.

A total of 600 first class passengers can be carried by the Bremen, or up to 800 if all the extra extension of "pullman" berths are used. Another 500 can go second class, 300 tourist class, and 600 third class, making a grand total of normally 2,000 of a maximum of 2,200. If occasion arises, and the new tourist class proves especially popular, it may be expanded to take care of 500 by adapting a part of the normally second class space.

AVIATOR PREPARING FOR HOPOFF TO JAPAN

Los Angeles (AP)—Harold Bromley, Tacoma, Wash., flier, who is here inspecting construction of a specially built airplane in which he proposes to make a nonstop flight to Japan, said he planned to hop off from Tacoma about the middle of July, depending on weather conditions.

The monoplane, an all-wood Lockheed machine with a 420 horse power motor, will be completed in about twelve days.

Bromley said hazard of the flight would be lessened by the floating qualities of his allowed plane, coupled with the installation of a sending and receiving radio set which will have a transmitting radius of 3,000 miles.

The flight, backed by Tacoma business men, is planned as a forerunner of mail and passenger service between Tacoma and Japan, Bromley said.

POLICE SEEKING CAUSE OF DEATH OF BUSINESSMAN

Body of Otto Zerrenner Found in His Automobile Sunday Morning

New London—Otto Zerrenner, 51, prominent business man of this city, was discovered dead in his car by his son, Forrest, at about 6 o'clock on Sunday morning. A coronor's jury was at once impaneled, but no trace of bodily injury was found on the body. The thought that death was caused by carbon monoxide was dismissed when it was found that the car was not running and the garage doors were open. Sheriff Overm and Undersheriff J. O. Hanson, Waupaca-county were called and after their inspection the body was removed to the undertaker's parlors. A pathologist was summoned from Milwaukee and an inquest will be held on Monday.

Mr. Zerrenner was seen with his wife shopping down town, Saturday evening and the last to see him alive were his sons, Earl and Forrest, who said good night to him upon their return at 1:30 Sunday morning from a dance. Both boys stated that their father seemed physically well at that time. When Forrest went to the garage on Sunday morning to leave for his work at the Zerrenner brick yards, north of the city, he found his father. Members of the family and a physician were summoned, but the man had been dead some time.

Mr. Zerrenner has been associated during his entire life with his brother Albert O. Zerrenner. Coming here from Green Bay more than thirty years ago the two built up the Zerrenner Brick works. He was interested in civic affairs and was a talented musician. He is survived by his wife and daughter Venice and his sons, Forrest, Earl, Fay and Carl.

Find Indian Skeleton In Hortonville Sandhill

New London—While digging sand from a hill on the farm of Walter Radich, Hortonville-rd on Saturday, workmen discovered the skeleton of an Indian. The discovery was not made, however, until considerable damage had been done to the long buried bones. As a consequence the larger part of the torso structure was lost. The Rev. F. S. Dayton, curator of the New London Public museum, brought back all available bones.

Mr. Radich stated that when found the bones were in an upright position, showing that the Indian had been buried according to regular Indian custom. All Indian dead were buried in a sitting position, with knees well drawn up, and hands crossed upon the breast.

Considerable interest was aroused because of the condition of the arm bones, which were badly charred. This, asserted the curator, might point to the burning of a captive, and to substantiate this idea, much charcoal was found on a level with the skeleton. Captives frequently were put to death in this manner, yet the leg bones were untouched, by fire which leaves the point unsolved. It is possible, Mr. Dayton believes, that the man, who was between the ages of 50 and 60 died of natural causes, and was buried on the site of his teepee. This would account for the charcoal.

This hill is believed to have been one of the many camping places of the wandering tribes of the valley, to which they fled when mosquitoes drove them from the thickets and woods. Nearby were bits of broken pottery and waupum beads. The identifying traces of the Indian race are noted in the teeth, which even after these years are remarkably well preserved, narrowing at the bases and meeting at the top, as Indian teeth always do. The teeth are ground down considerably through mastication of red man's fare, and a square chin and high cheek bones are other racial identifications. The skull and other parts will be given to the museum.

FAVOR PRIVATE FLYING CLUBS THROUGHOUT U. S.

Washington—(AP)—Movement to establish private flying clubs throughout the country has been launched by the National Aeronautical association.

Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, president of the organization, announcing the plan, said the movement was directed toward the "proper development of civil flying in the United States." It has been undertaken, he said, only after insurance difficulties have been overcome. It is now possible, he explained, for a flying club formed under the N. A. A. plan and chartered, to receive insurance against the loss of the plane, and against property liability, property damage and passenger liability.

While foreign flying clubs are thriving under government subsidy, he declared, this idea "is not tolerated and is not recommended by the association."

Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the need for a laxative was not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even then early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

This prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

sin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

Your Question And Its Answer

By J. A. Panneck, D. C. PALMER CHIROPRACTOR

QUESTION: I have been troubled with hay fever for the last ten years. I have taken all kinds of powders and doctored with several medical doctors with no relief. Is Chiropractic successful with hay fever? Please answer in your column.

ANSWER: Yes. Hay fever is a condition wherein the membranes of the nose and eyes are in a state of congestion and are constantly producing a profuse exudate. The eyes water; the nose runs; the patient sneezes; the discomfort continues day after day, week after week, usually until cool weather sets in in the fall.

We have been told that hay fever is produced by dust from trees and plants. No doubt this dust is an irritation but the cause of the hay fever lies within the individual. If this were not true everyone would suffer from the disease. This we know is not the case. The hay fever victim sees many around him, who are perfectly well, yet living under the same conditions that something is wrong with him. Most hay fever victims have tried so many so-called cures that they are disgusted. Many of them have just about made up their minds that they are destined to suffer as long as they live. If they could only know that Chiropractic has been successful in many, many cases of this kind. If a Chiropractor is available his services should be sought. The hay fever sufferer can't afford to go on year after year when relief lies just around the corner.

QUESTION: I am troubled with gas and constipation. I have tried all kinds of drugs and dieting without any help. What would you advise?

ANSWER: Your digestive organs are sick. They are not receiving their supply from the nervous system. A Chiropractor will correct this and you will have no further trouble.

NEW ANAESTHETIC IS FOUND SUCCESSFUL

Chicago—(AP)—Two experiments with a new anaesthetic, given intravenously, proved successful at the Cook-co hospital last week. It was announced today. In each case a major operation was performed, the anaesthetic being "a distinct success," according to Dr. Harry Rothenick, who assisted in handling the cases.

The anaesthetic is "sodium amyli-ethyl barbiturate," developed by Dr. L. G. Zervas and Dr. J. T. C. McCallum of the Indianapolis City hospital. Under the anaesthetic the patient falls asleep while it is being injected into the veins. Advantages claimed for it are that it eliminates post operative lung involvement and nausea. It may be given alone or as an adjunct to a general anaesthetic. The claim also is made that it may be employed in control of convulsions, strychnine poisoning, rabies and tetanus.

EXPECT DECISION ON HORICON MARSH EARLY NEXT MONTH

Bench Faced With Problem of Interpreting "Internal Improvements"

Madison—(AP)—Constitutionality of the state law re-creating Horicon marsh, as a marsh, may be decided by the state supreme court the first part of July, following arguments this week over the 1927 legislative enactments by which this was sought.

Attorneys for opponents of the plan to restore the great lake-like area argued before the high court that the laws come within the purview of the constitutional restraint against the state making "internal improvements."

The court must, if it decides that question, set another interpretation on "internal improvements." Previous court actions have established that Capitol, buildings and other construction necessary to the conduct of state business are not considered internal improvements.

The forthcoming decision, however, will give another opinion on whether the forests, fish propagation and other conservation works are "internal improvements," and thus prohibited by the constitution.

Highways are improvement within the state, and yet the state helps build them, T. L. McIntosh, of the attorney general's department, argued in favor of constitutionality of the Horicon marsh laws.

"The highways are built for the benefit of the people, and so are fish hatched, trees grown, and game preserved for the sake of the citizens," he argued. "Why, then, is it unconstitutional for the state to restore a marsh which we contend was always state property to continue this propagation of fish, preservation of fish, preservation of game birds and fur bearing animals?"

On the other technical point in opponents' presentation, that the bills enacted into the marsh law, contained more than one subject in their title, there was no argument before the supreme court.

Citing the trust duty assumed by the state in establishment of hundreds of fish hatcheries previously Mr. McIntosh said this implied constitutionality of the contemplated re-flooding of the marsh.

Called "PUBLIC WATER" The territorial boundaries of Wisconsin setting the boundaries on the "navigable" streams of the state, called Rock River, which flows through the marsh, "public water," he said.

"Does the widening of this stream over a marsh take it from that category of streams over which the state exercises control?" he asked.

If state control still obtains on the land under the 'lake' or marsh, riparian owners around it have no patent to land therein, he said. "As the state could not give or sell this land, it cannot legally buy it back. It can compensate these men who think and claim they are owners for their loss in having the land they have assumed was theirs taken back, but it cannot purchase the land."

Another case is expected on the matter of payment for the land, although an opinion to the above effect has already gone to the state treasurer and interested state officials.

Supporting his claim that the marsh is navigable water, McIntosh cited the case of a man, many years ago, who pushed his duck-hunting boat from one of the deep lakes dimple the marsh, out into waters in the swampy land. He said the fact that a boat was able to navigate such water made the marsh a navigable body under the contemplation of the legal term. The supreme court upheld this contention when the rod and gun club that sought to prosecute the hunter took the matter to court, he said. The case, on appeal, brought the opinion that the waters around the lake were state property, "and they remain so," the attorney general's assistant said.

Ralph W. Jackman, opposition attorney, however, read from the opinion in the case, that the soil around the flooded lake was peat and strong enough to support the weight of a walking man.

"Because the state delayed in exercising its trust on this body of water," McIntosh concluded, "is no reason that the illegal drainage should be evidence favoring continuance of this dereliction."

Attorneys Jackman and Peter J. Meyers, Racine, confined most of their argument to history of the marsh, the dams in and below it, and claims that the land had raised many crops of hay, which were harvested with heavy power equipment, indicating that the land was dry enough to be considered other than marsh.

They said no case had been tried to show the state's clear title to the land now claimed by farmers around the marsh.

MAGGOTS ATTACK BEDS OF CABBAGE

Ounce of Corrosive Subliminate in 10 Gallons of Water Makes Good Spray

BY W. F. WINSEY

Shiocton—Maggots are damaging or destroying a number of the cabbage beds in the cabbage growing district about this village. An inspection of six beds on Thursday revealed one bed in which two-thirds of the plants had been destroyed, another about one-half and a third between a third and one-half.

The healthy plants in the worst damaged bed were about three inches tall and were very thrifty as were all of the plants before being destroyed. The healthy plants were surrounded, however, by millions of maggot eggs and lively maggots on the injured plants. To this may be added that a few flies about the size of a house fly but slenderer than the eggs were captured and found to be loaded with eggs. In commenting on the situation, the owner of the bed said that his cabbage plants a few days ago were the best and most promising that he had ever raised, but he is now ready to purchase 100,000 cabbage plants if he knew where he could get them.

The control of the cabbage maggot, recommended by entomologists of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, is one ounce of corrosive subliminate in ten gallons of water. One gallon of the mixture is sufficient to treat a row of cabbage plants to thirty-five feet long. It should be mixed and stored in a wooden container. The solution may be applied through a faucet at the bottom of a wooden pail or a rubber tube. The ground should be cultivated before the solution is applied so that the solution is not wasted. To do its work the solution must come in contact with the eggs or the maggot. To catch a second hatch of maggots, the application should be repeated four days after the first application. If this control is used in time it will save 95 per cent of the cabbage plants.

Instead of trying to purchase 100,000 cabbage plants, the inspectors advised the cabbage grower to use the corrosive subliminate control with the purpose of saving 100,000 of his own plants.

Called "PUBLIC WATER" The territorial boundaries of Wisconsin setting the boundaries on the "navigable" streams of the state, called Rock River, which flows through the marsh, "public water," he said.

"Does the widening of this stream over a marsh take it from that category of streams over which the state exercises control?" he asked. If state control still obtains on the land under the 'lake' or marsh, riparian owners around it have no patent to land therein, he said. "As the state could not give or sell this land, it cannot legally buy it back. It can compensate these men who think and claim they are owners for their loss in having the land they have assumed was theirs taken back, but it cannot purchase the land."

Another case is expected on the matter of payment for the land, although an opinion to the above effect has already gone to the state treasurer and interested state officials.

Supporting his claim that the marsh is navigable water, McIntosh cited the case of a man, many years ago, who pushed his duck-hunting boat from one of the deep lakes dimple the marsh, out into waters in the swampy land. He said the fact that a boat was able to navigate such water made the marsh a navigable body under the contemplation of the legal term. The supreme court upheld this contention when the rod and gun club that sought to prosecute the hunter took the matter to court, he said. The case, on appeal, brought the opinion that the waters around the lake were state property, "and they remain so," the attorney general's assistant said.

Ralph W. Jackman, opposition attorney, however, read from the opinion in the case, that the soil around the flooded lake was peat and strong enough to support the weight of a walking man.

"Because the state delayed in exercising its trust on this body of water," McIntosh concluded, "is no reason that the illegal drainage should be evidence favoring continuance of this dereliction."

Attorneys Jackman and Peter J. Meyers, Racine, confined most of their argument to history of the marsh, the dams in and below it, and claims that the land had raised many crops of hay, which were harvested with heavy power equipment, indicating that the land was dry enough to be considered other than marsh.

They said no case had been tried to show the state's clear title to the land now claimed by farmers around the marsh.

HERE AND THERE WITH FARMERS

BY W. F. WINSEY

Owing to see unfavorable weather conditions, small grain seeded early is thin on the ground but the late seeding looks good, according to Walter H. Wacker, route 4, Mr. Wacker's early corn is up but he did not finish planting his late corn till Monday. Mr. Wacker shipped from Georgia, he planted an acre of early cabbage. Since the last report Mr. Wacker lost another cow by paint poisoning making a total of ten.

Black Creek—From bloating on clover pasture, Art Schroeder, route 2, lost one of his best cows last Thursday. The herd had never been off the pasture since being turned into the field except for milking purposes and in this season, Mr. Schroeder is unable to account for the loss.

Black Creek—Leslie Koss, route 2, says his team on high land is doing very well. His grasses for hay are promising but his clover and timothy pasture is short. A good shower would do the growing crops a world of good, according to Mr. Koss. He expects to plant an acre of cabbage. A short time ago, he finished re-shingling his barn and another out building.

Shiocton—Following his state breaking record of last year in acreage and yield of cabbage, Edward Knoke, route 1, expects to plant 100 acres of cabbage and 50 acres of cauliflower this spring. As last spring, he will do the planting with a tractor drawn planter that plants, fertilizes, and waters three rows at a time. He has ordered 200 tons of commercial fertilizer and expects to order considerably more. He will keep enough of the fertilizer for his own use and the balance will go to neighboring growers. He expects to begin planting about June 15. He will get his plants from a four acre cabbage bed on his farm in which the plants look thrifty from a distance.

Beside swamping state records as a cabbage grower, Mr. Knoke is now at work on a drainage project on his farm that for extent, short time required to do the work, and doing the work with farm help and farm-owned machinery, will shatter all state records.

Shiocton—Two tractors and one team are at work on Greenfield Farm managed by Charles Oaks, preparing the soil for planting 40 acres of soybeans, the crop to be used for hay. This is the largest acreage of soybeans thus far planted on a single farm in Outagamie-co and perhaps in this part of the state.

The planting of such a large acreage was made possible by a big crop of soybean hay from twenty acres last summer, the satisfactory flow of milk the hay produced, and the falling off of milk as after the last forkful of hay was devoured by the cows.

CHAPTER 5
WHERE IS JERRY?
Deacon greeted me briefly and went slowly towards the figure at the desk. He stood looking down at it, his square face white and his sea-blue eyes humid with emotion.
The dagger was carefully removed, and Dr. Oakley began his examination. Deacon turned to me.
"Well, John, what about it?"
I had been dreading the question. I detailed my purchase of the revolver and Hyde's secrecy about it, the telephone call, how I had found Andrew, Mrs. Moffit's message and what Hubbard had told me. Henry listened with eyes like points of ice.
"Did you see any one as you came over, John?"
Henry could not possibly know that I had seen Jerry or any one else, yet I felt as if he were looking into my mind. My voice was steady as I replied:
"I saw no one."
Stimson, the gardener, stood at the door with Hubbard. Stimson's eyes were riveted upon me, and there was in them something I didn't like. Stimson has been with Ogden's less than a year, and I haven't seen much of him. For some obscure reason he irritates me. I was suddenly vaguely conscious of disaster. It came upon me over-whelmingly that I should prevent Stimson from speaking, and I blurted out:
"Hubbard had better tell you his story, Henry."
Hubbard proceeded to enlarge upon what I had already told Deacon. Deacon turned to me. "Hubbard tells us Ogden shouted the two words 'gold bullets.' The bullets in this Peterson revolver you bought are gold. Do you suspect a connection?"
"I don't know any more than you do, Henry."
Dr. Oakley spoke just then. "He's been dead an hour or so, Deacon." Deacon looked at his watch.
"Ten-twenty-five," he muttered. "What time did you find him John?"
"Nine-thirty-three."
The dull thud, thud, of the front door knocker reverberated through the hall. Coming like that, it startled all of us. Hubbard hurried in to the hall.
The front door opened. Hubbard's voice, deferential and explanatory, came to us. Another's broke in upon it, hard and rasping in tone and familiar to me. My eyes sprang to Deacon's in astonishment. I saw him stiffen; a look of irritation crossed his honest face. I love a contest, and in spite of my astonishment and heaviness of heart I half smiled. But what had brought Luther MacNair here?
"Good evening, gentlemen."
MacNair had preceded Hubbard into the room, and he stood looking at us with that cold, disconcerting stare which was to become so familiar to me in the next few days. A year or two my junior, he had retired from professional life six months ago and taken up residence in San Felipe. He brought with him a handsome reputation as a man-tracker. Ruthless in his methods, diabolically clever, he was said to be less a personality than a machine.
"I called to see Ogden," MacNair went on. "This man," nodding at Hubbard, "tells me he has been murdered."
Deacon indicated the figure on the couch. "Pretty late for calling, isn't it?"
"I am here at Ogden's invitation. When I got home a few minutes ago I found this card under my door." MacNair gave Deacon one of Andrew Ogden's personal cards.
On the back of the card Andrew had written:
Mr. MacNair You were out when I called. There is a matter I wish to discuss with you. Will you drop in as soon as you return. This is important.
A. O.
"Have you any idea what Ogden wanted?" Deacon asked.
"Specifically, no."
"You mean he may have wanted to see you in a professional way?"
"Yes. But I retired six months ago."
Henry looked at the body. "I am sorry you weren't home," he grieved. "Andrew might have been with us now."
"You'll get your man easily enough."
"Ah! the solution is already apparent to you," Henry flashed at him. "Dear, dear! I was trying my hand at a compliment."
"You were never known for your compliments, MacNair."
"I suppose not. It's a gum business, this man-catching. But I'm through with it. A man with 23 hangings and 14 electrocutions to his credit has no business being interested in anybody's murder but his own. You'll find me at 2341 Magnolia if you want me. Good night, Deacon, Regards to Polyan-dria, Peebles."
Deacon went to the glass-topped cabinet behind the desk and lifted the lid.
"That dagger is kept here, isn't it, Hubbard?"
"As a rule, sir."
"It belongs to Mr. Jerry, doesn't it?"
"Yes, sir."
"Where is Mr. Jerry, Hubbard?"
"I-I believe he is out, sir."
"Where has he gone?"
"I don't know, sir. As I told you, I heard Mr. Jerry and Mr. Ogden talking in the library a few minutes after nine. That is all I know, sir."
Again there was silence. I managed to get myself in hand. Deacon was thinking. Presently he said:
"I suppose it was you who left Mr. Ogden's card at Mr. MacNair's?"
"No, sir. I left it there."
Stimson, the gardener, had answered the last question, his eyes challenging mine.
"You are the gardener, aren't you?" Deacon asked.
"Uh-huh."
"What time did Mr. Ogden give you this card?"
"Around six, I guess. That Furrer feller had just gone down the drive. Mr. Ogden called me, gave me the card and told me where to leave it. There was nobody home, so I shoved it under the door."
Deacon nodded.
"Your rooms are over the garage, aren't they?"
"Uh-huh."
"Is Mr. Jerry's car in the garage?"
"No, it ain't. But it was there round nine o'clock - just before I dropped in on the Hubbards."
"Did you see or hear the car go?"
"Nope." Stimson leered at me, then he leaned confidently towards Deacon. "I'd like a word with you alone, Chief."
(Copyright, 1929, Wm. Morrow Co.)
What will Stimson say to Deacon? Did he see Jerry running from the house? Tomorrow's chapter will tell.

"PAIRING" JOB IN SENATE DELICATE WORK FOR CLERK

Senator Arthur R. Gould Always Votes Contrary to Blaine

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Washington Bureau of Post-Crescent)

Washington—The senate clerk who pairs absent senators knows his job and knows his senators. "Pairing" is the process by which an absent senator's vote may be indicated and sometimes may count in determining the outcome of a question. Of course, if an absent senator is paired with another upon the result, but sometimes the fact that an absent senator is paired with a present senator prevents the one who is present from voting.

Eight or ten days ago Senator John J. Blaine started out in his automobile for Boscombe in the intention of staying there until the senate resumes sessions after the recess. About the same time Senator Arthur R. Gould of Maine started off for his home in the northernmost tip of the United States. The senate pair clerk promptly paired the Wisconsin senator with the Maine senator.

Now the Maine senator is old and is busy with the various power, lumber, and railroad projects which have made him a millionaire. He admits that he can't be bothered with looking into the merits of most questions before the senate. So early in his career as a senator he adopted a rule which he has followed ever since with but one variation. He listens carefully to the vote of Senator Blaine, who sits next to him and whose name is called shortly before his.

THEY VOTE OPPOSITE

If Senator Blaine votes "Aye," Senator Gould votes "No," and vice versa.

"It's a pretty safe rule," Senator Gould explained to this correspondent. "Blaine is nearly always wrong." The Maine senator tries to be as regular as regularity itself, and is an extreme conservative. The only time he voted with the Wisconsin senator was on the Jones "five and ten" law, and this was particularly notable since Maine is proud of the fact that it originated prohibition. At that time, however, Senator Gould voted for the Blaine amendments limiting the 5-year and $10,000 penalties to old offenders and commercial bootleggers, and then voted against the bill when the Blaine amendments were lost.

When the Senate got all excited over speculation again last week, as it practically always does when the bottom drops out of the market, Senator Robert M. La Follette Jr. could not resist the temptation to say "I told you so." After Senator James Couzens of Michigan had spoken on what should have been done, the Wisconsin senator said:

"I agree entirely with the position taken by the Senator from Michigan, and 18 months ago I introduced a resolution calling upon the Federal Reserve Board to exercise its power to curtail the credit which was being taken from the Federal Reserve system and used for speculative purposes on the stock exchange. That resolution provided further that in case the board did not agree with the Senate that it has such power it should recommend to Congress what legislation was necessary in order to give it that power. If the friends of the speculative activities in New York had not prevented the adoption of that resolution, the responsibility would have been placed upon the board either to have corrected the evil or to have recommended to Congress legislation which would give the board the power to correct it."

DOUBTFUL OF TARIFF

Representative John M. Nelson of Madison voted for the tariff bill, but is not very strong for it. He feels that if the farmers believe that increased duties on agricultural products will help them, the plan should be given a try-out. He says he intends to vote against the final passage of the bill, however, if the Senate further increases the duties on manufactured products.

This patronage business has the Wisconsin congressmen all up in the air. For instance, Representative Merlin Hull of Black River Falls was one of the four to whom George Vits said patronage would be given. But he says that when he asked the Director of the Census if his recommendation would be given consideration in the appointment of the supervisor of the census district of which La Crosse is the headquarters, the census director informed him that he would be given no consideration at all.

On the other hand, Representative John M. Nelson of Madison, who was left out in the patronage allocation, says that the census director told him that his recommendation for supervisor of the Madison district would be considered.

Apparently Vits had better get in touch with Director Stewart as well as with Postmaster Brown, for there are thousands of census appointments to be made in Wisconsin this year.

SEEKS NEW POSITION

The Post Office Department has asked the Civil Service Commission to hold an examination to provide eligible candidates for postmaster at Curtiss, Clark-co, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Jacob Johnson on May 13. The job pays $1,400 a year, and Representative Hull will be consulted in making the appointment if the Vits patronage plan is in effect.

Flying schools in Wisconsin will be inspected soon by George Gardner of the Chicago headquarters of the Aeronautics Branch of the United States Department of Commerce as part of a nation-wide inspection to classify and license flying schools.

The Chicago-Minneapolis air mail schedule will be changed effective June 15. Under the new schedule the mail plane will reach Madison at 8:05 and La Crosse at 9:20 a. m. on the westbound trip, and La Crosse at 4:25 and Madison at 5:30 p. m. on the eastbound trip.

Kathryn Vits, daughter of the Wisconsin Republican National Committeeman, will probably be in school in Washington next year. Mr. and Mrs. George Vits were here last week looking over schools for her, and she was along, too, helping pick out the educational institution.

MORE BUILDING IN STATE THIS YEAR

Volume for Week Ending May 31 Estimated to Cost $4,506,000

The volume of construction definitely started or contracted for throughout the state of Wisconsin during the week ending May 31, amounted to $4,506,000, as reported by F. W. Dodge Corporation. This total is only slightly less than that for the previous week and brought the total for the month up to $21,829,900. This is the highest monthly total reported this year, exceeding that for April by $8 per cent and is 10 per cent greater than May of last year. A comparison of the daily average attained during the first five months of 1929 and 1928 will indicate the favorable trend of the state's construction record: the 1929 daily average is $546,500 as compared with $539,100 during the same period of 1928.

The construction program in Milwaukee has not quite kept pace with that of the state. The week's total of $1,804,600 which exceeded that of the previous weeks and the daily average of construction volume also indicated a favorable upward trend, however. The 1929 daily average for the first five months of this year is $206,000, as compared with $195,100 for the corresponding period of last year. The May total of $5,351,800, however, was somewhat less than for May of last year and for April of this year.

Included in the construction record for the state are the following important classes: $1,656,200 or 37 per cent of all construction for residential buildings; $1,420,000 or 31 per cent for public works and utilities; $532,000, or 12 per cent for educational buildings; and $515,800, or 11 per cent for commercial buildings.

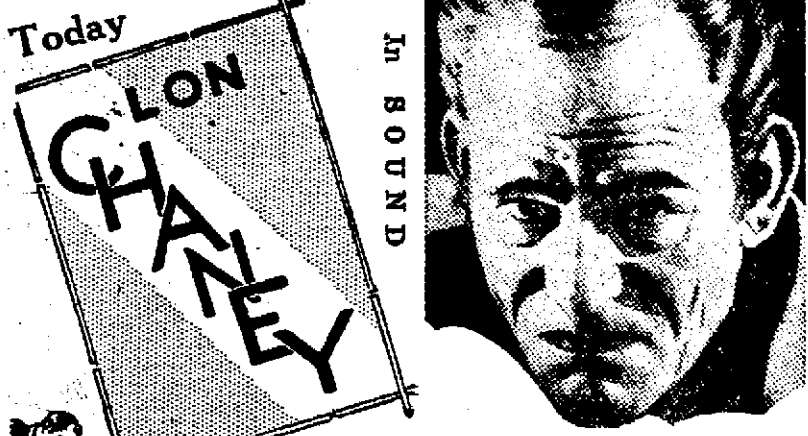

The same classes of construction were also the most important in the Milwaukee record, as follows: $565,000, or 31 per cent of all construction for residential buildings; $500,000 or 25 per cent, for educational buildings; $408,000, or 23 per cent for commercial buildings; and $319,500 or 18 per cent for public works and utilities.

WOOL INDUSTRIES ARE BOUNCING BACK AFTER LONG PLUNGE

Large Tonnage Has Been Absorbed and Clips Continue to Move Slowly

BY J. C. ROYLE
Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press
New York.—Textile and wool men expressed the belief today that wool and woolens had "bumped bottom." Not only that but whereas in the past wool has bumped with a sickening thud and lain prostrate, this time it shows signs of bouncing back, like the rabbit ball.

Wool men assert this is true despite the gloomy prognostications of many who have become accustomed to allude to the woolen industry as one which has passed to the other side and with which communication is only possible by psychic means.

It is true that raw wool prices are on a decidedly lower level than they were a year ago. But a goodly tonnage of wool has been absorbed from the clips of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, Idaho and Wyoming. Oregon wools are moving steadily, if slowly, and California clips are more than half sold. There still remains considerable tonnage in the range states but it is being taken off the market by eastern buying as the auction days come around.

STOCKS ARE MELTING

A percentage of some of the famous pools, like the Jericho in Utah, have come east on consignment but these shipments have been well absorbed in the east. Stocks in this country and abroad are heavy. They are estimated at between 5 and 6 per cent larger than a year ago. For a time these stocks hung almost stationary, since woolen manufacturers were struggling against the handicap of unfavorable weather to get rid of large inventories they had piled up. Now, however, stocks are commencing to melt and raw staple is required to permit commencement of production of goods for next fall and winter. Orders for the autumn and winter of 1929 are satisfactory so far.

Imports from Australia, Uruguay, and Argentina are increasing but it must not be forgotten that America does not grow sufficient wool for its own needs and some imports are essential. Prices in the foreign markets are relatively low but so are costs of production. The manufacturers would like price rises, but their margin of profit is small, but they have encountered the most stubborn of buyer resistance.

The growers have gotten an average of between 2 and 3 cents a pound on 98 grades less than they received in 1928. But they have cut costs and improved methods. The remark made to the writer six years ago by one of the big wool men of Rock Springs, Wyo., has become

LIFE'S ODDITIES

By George Clark

"I wouldn't mind endorsing your cigarettes if the coach wouldn't think I'd been smoking them."

classic in the industry. He said, "I have found that a man can't herd sheep from an automobile." The industry has taken this to heart and bought fewer automobiles and put more energy into herding. So the loss to growers from last year's levels has been less than it seems.

BUSINESS PICKED UP

The woolen manufacturers are in better position than they were a year ago although they still have ample room for improvement. They have done a decidedly larger volume of business so far this year than in the corresponding months of 1928 and the demand shows no signs of diminishing. The industry is admittedly overmilled. Much of the machinery is obsolete but the process of scrapping this old equipment and of consolidating and eliminating the less productive units is making progress.

The consumption of wool this year probably will total near 350,000,000 pounds, not counting carpet wools. This is above the amount used in 1928. The manufacturers look for little aid from proposed tariff changes but it is apparent that not all the woolen companies are in a position to complain. Those whose managements have adjusted themselves to style changes and adopted new methods of merchandising are doing remarkably well.

Rhinelanders Saw First "Red Devil" 26 Years Ago

Rhineland.—(AP)—Twenty-six years ago, came August 12, on a hot and dusty day, the first "red devil" puffed and spluttered its way into Rhineland from Chicago.

The "red devil," it might be explained, was the appendage given the early automobile. Twenty-six years ago—the gay nineties were gone—the machine age was in progress. It had developed a curious contrivance of four wheels which belched smoke and acrid fumes.

The automobile that burst through the uneven streets of Rhineland 26 years ago caused no little comment among the villagers. It was a 10 horsepower machine, and successfully carried four people.

F. W. Hedzeland, superintendent of the W. W. Kimball company, Fred H. Wolf, of the L. Wolf Manufacturing company, S. H. Lamp, of the W. W. Kimball company, and Dr. H. E. Sauer, all of Chicago, where the heroes of the first memorable ride from Chicago to Rhineland.

SEALER OF MEASURES CONDEMNS 6 SCALES

Out of 638 scales inspected in May by Joseph Hodgins, city sealer of weights and measures, six were condemned, three were condemned for repairs, 11 were "adjusted and 617 were found in perfect condition. Of the six condemned, five were liquid measures and one was an avoirdupois weight.

The scales condemned for repairs included a wagon weight, an automatic dial, and an auto pump scale. Seven auto pumps computing scales and two avoirdupois scales, were adjusted.

In the tryout work 43 visits were made to various stores and 173 packages were tested for accurate weight. Twenty-three packages were found to weigh incorrectly while 150 were correct.

trouble personified for even those hardy automotive pioneers.

"The tire that was removed on the trip is on display here," the new story said. "It shows the wear and tear that a road trip up in this region will give."

The excursionists "were in fine physical shape," the commentary added.

NO PATIENCE WITH CHILDREN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Steadied Her Nerves

Dalton, Pa.—"I was weak, nervous and run-down before my last baby was born. My other children tired me. I had no patience with them and they just wore me out. My mother told me about someone who took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped her. I took it myself and got fine results. I am getting along fine now, thanks to your Vegetable Compound. My husband and I both feel sure that it helped me."—Mrs. RAYMOND STAGG, R. F. D. 2, Dalton, Pa.
